8. Unfinished Business.

Friday Afternoon, Nov. 20, 2:30 p. m.

1. Meeting of Executive Committee and Special Conferences.

Dean H. L. Russell, of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture will address the convention on Thursday, November 19, on the subject "Hold Fast That Which Thou Hast." The subject of standardization of potatoes is of special interest to Dean Russell, especially on account of the activities of the Wisconsin Station along the same lines in other agricultural pursuits. At the Convention held at Rhinelander, last year Dean Russell stated: "The time is not far distant when inspection and certification of seed stock will be as prevalent and as popular as is the tuberculin test for tuberculosis in cattle among progressive dairymen. The application of the community center idea to growing potatoes, adherence to ideals with reference to quality of the product, and inspection and certification of the purity of the product as to type and freedom from disease, are bound to bring in time results which are commensurate in value to those which have been secured by the development of community ideals in dairying."

Definite word has been received that Mr. W. A. Orton, in charge of Potato Disease Investigation for the U. S. Department of Agriculture, will be in attendance at the Convention. As indicated elsewhere in this issue, Mr. Orton's duties keep him closely in touch with potato disease conditions in the United States, than any other authority in the country. Special conferences will be held at the time of the Convention relative to plans for the coming year's work, in which the U. S. Department of Agriculture and this State are mutually interested.

We have also received definite assurance of the attendance of Dr. L. E. Melhus, who is also affiliated with the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Dr. Melhus has spent the past two seasons on research work in the potato sections of Aroostook County, Maine. He comes especially fitted to report to the Convention upon very important relations of the development of powdery scab in some of the commercial potato sections of the country. Dr. Melhus spent two years at the Wisconsin Experiment Station and will be able to give to Wisconsin growers such experience as will be of special application to this state.

During their visit in the old country they are also deodorized, and under ordinary conditions nobody would ever suspect that they were sailing under false colors. But some day when the lady of the house goes out in the mist and rain, and then comes in and stands by the warm stove before removing her furs, there is a faint and far-away odor pervades the atmosphere, and the man of the house is carried back to the summer morning on the farm when the caught a skunk under the chicken-coop that had been stealing the eggs out from under the setting hens. The smell isn't a very strong one, but he recognizes it all right, and smiles to himself as he sizes up his wife's sables.

Speaking of skunks reminds us of something that happened to one of our citizens not so many years ago. This man had been buying raw furs, when one day a young fellow came into his place of business with something in a sack. There was also an overpowering smell of skunk about the young fellow, and the merchant wanted to know what he had in the sack. The boy said he had a live skunk in the sack, making as if to dump it out onto the floor, stating that he had heard that the man wanted one for mounting.

We heard another one about a young fellow from the country who had dressed in his best and started for town on a bicycle to attend a dance. It was in the dusk of summer evening and he was speeding along the path at a good rate when suddenly some animal tried to cross in front of his wheel. When the young fellow had untangled himself from the wheel there was no question in his mind what kind of an animal he had struck, and he did not continue on his way to the dance, although he was not seriously injured. He stated afterward that those best clothes of his were not molested by moths or anything else for several years afterward.

NOTHING DOING IN FURS.

Prices Said To Be So Low That It Will Not Pay For Time Spent In Trapping.

According to the Marshfield Herald there is very little doing in the fur line this fall, the price at the present time being too low to pay trappers for the time spent in getting the fur bearing animals.

The two animals that furnish the most fur and incidentally the most revenue to the fur hunters of Wisconsin are the muskrat and the skunk. There was a time when the fur of the muskrat was considered to be of a very inferior quality, while the skunk was seldom utilized at all, but things have changed. Owing to the almost utter extinction of many of the better fur-bearing animals, such as the mink, otter and beaver, the muskrat and skunk have come up several notches in the estimation of furbearers, and the prices have soared proportionately.

Probably the skunk undergoes the greatest transformation in the hands of the expert. The hides are shipped to the old country and after passing thru the hands of the men who understand the business they are returned to this country to be made up. They went over with two stripes down their back and one across that would drive a dog out of a tanyard. But they come back a glossy black, the fur even and smooth, and so far as the average person knows they resemble a sable skin very closely, for there are few people who really know what a true sable skin looks like.

During their visit in the old country they are also deodorized, and under ordinary conditions nobody would ever suspect that they were sailing under false colors. But some day when the lady of the house goes out in the mist and rain, and then comes in and stands by the warm stove before removing her furs, there is a faint and far-away odor pervades the atmosphere, and the man of the house is carried back to the summer morning on the farm when the caught a skunk under the chicken-coop that had been stealing the eggs out from under the setting hens. 1. Report of Secretary.

2. Potatoes in Crop Rotation, Prof. E. J. Delwiche, Supt. Northern Sub-Stations.

3. Standardizing Fair Premium List, J. D. Grandine, North Grand.

4. County Agricultural Representative Work in Relation to Potato Improvement, E. L. Luther, State Supervisor, County Agricultural Representative.

(All County Agricultural Representatives of Wisconsin have been active in the preparation of county exhibits and will be present throughout the sessions of the Convention.)

5. Contribution of the Live Stock Industry to Potato Growing, F. H. Scribner, Rosedale.

6. Cooperation of the Wisconsin Farm Institutes During the Coming Winter, C. P. Norgard, Superintendent, Farm Institutes.

7. Report of Committee on Resolutions.

8. Unfinished Business.

Friday Afternoon, Nov. 20, 2:30 p. m.

1. Meeting of Executive Committee and Special Conference, Dean H. L. Russell, of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture will address the convention on Thursday, November 19, on the subject "Hold Fast That Which Thou Hast." The subject of standardization of potatoes is of special interest to Dean Russell, especially on account of the activities of the Wisconsin Station along the same lines in other agricultural pursuits. At the Convention held at Rhinelander, last year Dean Russell stated: "The time is not far distant when inspection and certification of seed stock will be as prevalent and as popular as is the tuberculosis test for tuberculosis in cattle among progressive dairymen." The application of the community center idea to growing potatoes, adherence to ideals with reference to quality of the product, and inspection and certification of the purity of the product as to type and freedom from disease, are bound to bring in time results which are commensurate in value to those which have been secured by the development of community ideals in dairying.

Definite word has been received that Mr. W. A. Orton, in charge of Potato Disease Investigation for the U. S. Department of Agriculture, will be in attendance at the Convention. As indicated elsewhere in this issue, Mr. Orton's duties keep him closer in touch with potato disease conditions in the United States, than any other authority in the country. Special conferences will be held at the time of the Convention relative to plans for the coming year's work, in which the U. S. Department of Agriculture and this State are mutually interested.

We have also received definite assurance of the attendance of Dr. L. E. Melhus, who is also affiliated with the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Dr. Melhus has spent the past two seasons on research work in the potato sections of Aroostook County, Maine. He comes especially fitted to report on the convention upon very important relations of the development of powdery mildew in some of the commercial potato sections of the country. Dr. Melhus spent two years at the Wisconsin Experiment Station and will be able to give to Wisconsin growers such experience as will be of special application to this state.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Ellis visited in Wausau on Sunday and Monday.

Irving Henry is spending a week deer hunting in the vicinity of Glidden.

Miss Eliza Gaffney has gone to Tomahawk where she will spend the winter.

Dave Lutz and family are now located in their new home on First street north.

Million Dollar Mystery, Saturday at Daly's.

Mrs. C. F. Youngman of Wautoma is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Redford.

Mrs. Emily Zook of Galesburg, Ill., is here for an extended visit with her daughter Mrs. Lloyd Mathis.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Vadnais of Brainard, Minn., are rejoicing over the arrival of a baby boy at their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hucksins of Chicago are visiting at the Chas. Watterman home. The ladies are sisters.

Children's matinee Sunday 3 p. m. Uncle Tom's Cabin, 5c and 10c.

Elmwood Adrain, a lad about 10 years of age broke his right arm near the wrist while wrestling with a companion one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Booth and daughter and Mrs. A. Riley of Marshfield spent Sunday in the city, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas E. Boles.

George Goodman left on Tuesday for Elcho, where he will visit his son Roy, who runs a drug store there and also put in some time deer hunting.

P. H. Likes of Pleasant Hill and Rev. S. Bullock, pastor of the Congregational church at Pittsville were among the pleasant callers at the Tribune office this morning, they being in attendance at the Sunday School Convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lassa of the town of Sigel are mourning the death of their infant son who passed from this earth on Friday last. The funeral was held from the Catholic church in this city on Monday, Rev. Cisewski officiating.

Mrs. James B. Nash and Mrs. Guy O. Babcock entertained the members of the B & S Club of Port Edwards on Saturday evening at a dinner at the home of Mrs. Nash. It was a paper dinner, the ladies coming dressed in paper dresses, and the decorations about the house were also of paper.

Miss Culla Nason, manager of the Centralia Pulp & Water Power company, returned on Sunday from her western trip, which had occupied about three weeks. While away she visited at Portland, Oregon, Seattle, Wash., Spokane, and other points in the west, having had a most pleasant trip.

The country store and bazaar held at the amusement hall last Thursday by the ladies of the Catholic church was a most successful affair, and they netted the sum of $500.00 by their efforts. They were favored with good crowds and everybody pronounced it one of the best things of the kind that has ever been held in the city.

Mike McDonald was sentenced to ten days in the county jail on Thursday for begging on the streets. Mike had just been released from jail that morning, having finished a ten day sentence, so that he had hardly time to get about and visit his friends before he was locked up again. If these professional hobo's were put to work when they are jailed they would be more careful about their actions and they would give the city a wide berth.

Leonard Pascawis and Fred Kissel were arrested by Game Warden Cole on Saturday for dynamiting fish in Hemlock Creek. They were tried before Judge Roberts that evening and paid a fine and costs amounting to $100.00. One would think that an experience of this kind would put a damper on this sort of law breaking, but there are others in the city who have been in the habit of using dynamite and nets in catching fish, and they will be hauled up and given a taste of the same medicine.

NOTHING DOING IN FURS.

Prices Said To Be So Low That It Will Not Pay For Time Spent In Trapping.

According to the Marshall Herald there is very little doing in the fur line this fall, the price at the present time being too low to pay trappers for the time spent in getting the fur bearing animals.

The two animals that furnish the most fur and incidentally the most revenue to the fur hunters of Wisconsin are the muskrat and the skunk. There was a time when the fur of the muskrat was considered to be of a very inferior quality, while the skunk was seldom utilized at all, but things have changed. Owing to the almost utter extinction of many of the better fur-bearing animals, such as the mink, otter and beaver, the muskrat and skunk have come up several notches in the estimation of furriers, and the prices have soared proportionately.

Probably the skunk undergoes the greatest transformation in the hands of the expert. The hides are shipped to the old country and after passing thru the hands of the men who understand the business they are returned to this country to be made up. They went over with two stripes down their back and a scent that would drive a dog out of a tanyard. But they come back a glossy black, the fur soft and smooth, and so far as the average person knows they resemble a sable skin very closely, for there are few people who really know what a true sable skin looks like.

During their visit in the old country they are also deodorized, and under the expert hands of the tanner every suspect that they were sailing under false colors. But some day when the lady of the house goes out in the mist and rain, and then comes in and stands by the warm stove before removing her furs, there is a faint and far-away odor pervades the atmosphere, and the man of the house is carried back to the sunny morning on the farm when he caught a skunk under the chicken coop that had been stealing the eggs out from under the setting hens. The smell isn't a very strong one, but he recognizes it all right, and smiles to himself as he sizes up his wife's sables.

Speckles of skunk reminds us of something that happened to one of our citizens not so many years ago. This man had been buying raw furs, when one day a young fellow came into his place of business with something in a sack. There was also an overpowering smell of skunk about the young fellow, and the merchant wanted to know what he had in the sack. The boy said he had a live skunk in the sack, making as if to dump it out onto the floor, stating that he had heard that the man wanted one for mounting.

The merchant quietly but firmly assured the boy that he was not in the market for live skunks at that time and suggested that he remove the animal from the premises just as quick as the law would let him without breaking the speed limit.

We heard another one about a young fellow from the country who had dressed in his best and started for town on a bicycle to attend a dance. It was in the dusk of summer evening and he was speeding along the path at a good rate when suddenly some animal tried to cross in front of his wheel. When the young fellow had untangled himself from the wheel there was no question in his mind what kind of an animal he had struck, and he did not continue his way to the dance, altho he was not seriously injured. He stated afterward that those best clothes of his were not molested by moths or anything else for several years afterward.

Game Was a Tie.

The local high school football team played a game with the Stevens Point highs on Saturday, and the result was a tie, each team having scored 7 points when the smoke of conflict cleared from the field. The locals outplayed the visitors at every stage of the game and would have won out had it not been for a streak of bad luck.

Revelations of the Kaiser's Personal Spy

By Dr. Armgard Karl Graves

Who, for a Number of Years Prior to His Arrest and Betrayal in England in 1912, was Emperor William's Most Trusted Personal Spy.

(Copyright, 1914, by the Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

The Making of a German Secret Agent.

The average man or woman has only a few ideas of what European secret service and espionage really means and accomplishes. Short stories, novels, and plays, written in a background of diplomacy and secret agents, have given the public vague impressions about the world of spies. But this is the first real, unvarnished account of the system; the class of men and women employed; the means used to obtain the desired results, and the risks run by those connected with this service. And before continuing with the narration of my own mission as the Kaiser's personal spy, I think it well to give my readers this general insight of the spy system of Europe, and particularly of the German empire.

Since the days of Moses, who employed spies in Canaan, to Napoleon Bonaparte, who inaugurated the first thorough system of political espionage, and heads of departments have found it necessary to obtain early and correct information about their enemies through the usual official channels. To gain this knowledge they have to employ persons known and unrecognized in official circles. A recognized official, such as an ambassador or a secretary of legation, an envoy plenipotentiary or a consul, would not be able to gain the information sought, as naturally everybody is on their guard against him. Moreover, official etiquette prevents an ambassador or consul from acting in such a capacity. But European governments must keep a stringent watch on one another's movements, and this is possible only by an efficient system of espionage, by trained men and women, willing to run the risk attached to this sort of work.

For risks there are. I have been imprisoned twice, once in the Balkans at Belgrade, once in England. I have been attacked five times and bear the marks of the wounds to this day. Escapes I have had by the dozens. All my missions were not successful, more often failures and the failures are often serious, verging on the fatal. For instance:

Into a Hornet's Nest.
Early in the morning of June 11, 1901, the political plot which had been brewing in Serbia ended with the assassination of the king, queen, ministers and members of the royal household of Serbia. I shall not go into the undercurrent political significance of these atrocities, as I had no active part in them, but I was sent down by my government later to ascertain as far as possible the prime movers in the intrigue which pointed to Colonel Nisichich and a gang of officers of the Sixth regiment. All these regarded as alleged Russian spy, for the Kara Georgevich had become disloyal to Russia because of his flirting with Austria. Besides, his own idiotic behavior and the flagrant indiscretions of Queen Draga had by no means endeared him to his people.

I stuck my nose into a regular hornet's nest and soon found myself in a most dangerous position. I was arrested by the provisional government on the order of Lieutenant Colonel Nisichich on a most flimsy charge of traveling with false passports. In those times arrests and executions were the order of the day. The old Serbian proverb of "Od Roka Likid Roka Nisichich" (Out of prison, yes; out of the grave, never) was fully attested. There were really no incriminating papers of any description upon me, but my being seen and associating with persons opposed to the provisional government was quite enough to place me before a drumhead court-martial.

I was sitting in the Cafe Petite Nikolic with Lieutenant Nikolic and M. Krastov, a merchant of Belgrade, when a file of soldiers in charge of an officer pulled us out of our chairs and without any further ado marched us to the citadel. The next morning we were taken separately into a small room where three men in the uniform of colonels were seated at a small round table. No questions were asked.

"You are found guilty of associating with revolutionary persons. You were found possessing a passport, not your own. You are sentenced to be shot at sundown."

The whole thing appeared to me first as a joke, then as a bluff, but looking closely into those high-cheekboned, narrow-eyed faces with the characteristically close-cropped brutal heads, the humorous aspect dwindled rapidly and I thought it about time to make a countermove. Without betraying any of my inward qualms—and believe me, I began to have some—I said quietly:

"I think you will find it advisable to inform M. Zolarevitch (then minister of war) that Count Weringrode sends his regards."

I saw them looking rather curiously at one another and then the center inquisitor fired a lot of questions at me, in answer to which I only shrugged my shoulders.

"That's all I have to say, monsieur. I was shoved back in my cell. About four that afternoon one of the officers came to see me."

"Your message has not been sent. My comrades were against sending it, but I am related to Zolarevitch. So if you can show me some reason, I shall take your message."

I gave him some reason, so much so that he did not lose any time getting under way. In fact, it was a very pale, perturbed officer who rushed out of my cell.

Face to Face With a Firing Squad.
I didn't worry much, but when at associates. You will be known to us by a number. You will sign all your reports by that number. Always avoid telephoning, telegraphing and cabling as much as possible. In urgent cases do so, but use the cipher that will be supplied to you."

The German School for Spies.
I was in Herr von Stammer's office all the forenoon, and when he ushered me out I half expected to be called into Captain von Tapken's presence to be sent on my first mission.

stead of that, I had to wait five months before I was given my first work and an exceedingly unimportant thing it was. During those five months I was kept at a steady grind of schooling in subjects that were essential to efficient secret service work.

Broadly, they could be divided into four classes—topography, trigonometry, naval construction and drawing. My tutors were all experts in the imperial service. A secret service agent sent out to investigate and report on the condition, situation, and armament of a fort like Verdun in France must be able to make correct estimates of distances, height, angles, conditions of ground, etc. This can only be done by a man of the correct scientific training. He must have the science of topography at his finger tips; he must be able to make quick and accurate calculations, using trigonometry, as well as possessing skill as a draftsman. In a mission to Port Arthur (before the Russian-Japanese war), where I had to report on the defenses, I found this training invaluable.

The same applies to the subject of naval construction. Before entering the German secret service, I certainly knew the difference between a torpedo and a torpedo boat destroyer, but naturally could not give an accurate description of the various types of destroyers and torpedoes. My instructor in this subject was Lieut. Capt. Kurt Steffens, torpedo expert of the intelligence department of the imperial navy. After a month of tutelage under him, I was able to tell the various types of torpedoes, submarines, and mines, etc., in use by the principal rean with headquarters in Belgium, a semiprivate concern which procures reliable information for anyone who will pay for it. This service is generally entrusted with the procuring of technical details, such as the plans of a new kind of gun or data on a new and minor fortification. But sometimes Brussels undertakes other commissions. For example:

The Fiancee Who Was a Spy.
Not often does the chance come to leave the regular channels of espionage and go forth upon a mission out of the ordinary. That chance came a few years ago to the Russian agents in Brussels. In Petersburg the chiefs were desirous of knowing the identity and names of a group of revolutionists who had formed a sort of colony in Montreux, Switzerland. A French woman, known sometimes as Theresa Prevost (the last I heard of her she was in prison), was detailed to the mission. Young and clever was Theresa; likewise the man who was ordered to accompany her, posing as a "brother," Charles Prevost.

The chief of these Russian fugitives, who were down around the lake of Geneva brewing their dark plans, was known to the Russian agents, and he had a son twenty-two years of age—an impressionable Russian son. Hence the young and pretty Theresa.

It was decided by her Brussels chiefs that she should assume the role of an heiress from Canada. Five thousand francs for preliminary expenses were handed over to her and with Charles, the "brother," she descended upon Montreux. If you were there at the time you will recall the Canadian triumph made by the young Canadian heiress. You may even remember that she seemed to be infatuated with the young, impressionable son of old Goloukoffsky. They were going to be married, and Charles Prevost, the "brother," stood in the background, chatted amiably with old Goloukoffsky and his friends, and smiled.

Then, as an heiress should, Theresa and her "brother" invited Goloukoffsky to a dinner party. The young man, who was clearly ill at ease, but said "I have to obey my instructions." I had told him of my mission to the minister of war, and although it was quite obvious that I was sparring for time, he seemed in no way inclined to rush the execution. Five minutes went, ten minutes went, and looking at his watch, which showed five minutes to eight (although it was fast getting dusk I could see that watch dial distinctly), shrugging his shoulders and saying, "I can delay no longer," he called a sergeant, who placed me with my shoulders to the wall and ordered me a handkerchief. I didn't want a handkerchief. A few sharp orders and twelve Mauter tubes pointed their ugly black snouts directly at me.

I hate to tell my sensations just then. Frankly, I felt nothing clearly. The only thing I remember distinctly was that the third man in the second file held his gun in rather a slipshod manner, aiming it first at my midriff, then pointing it at my nose—which, strangely enough, caused me intense annoyance. How long we stood thus I don't know. The next thing I remember was a rattle of grounding arms and the sight of two other officers, excitedly gesticulating with the one in charge of the firing squad. All three presently came towards me and, pulling out a flask of cognac, with a polite bow offered me a drink. I needed it, but didn't take it. All this time I had been standing motionless with my arms folded across my breast. I heard one say to the other, "Nitchka curchka" (no coward). If he had only known!

"Indeed, had I anticipated such an experience, had I known the things I know now, I doubt if I would have ever been persuaded to enter the German secret service; I doubt if I would have been so pleased with the results of my visit to Koersingerstrasse 70, where the intelligence department of the admiralty is quartered. For it was in the admiralty that I began my career as a German secret service agent."

The Rules of the Service.
I did not enter the service out of pure adventure or for monetary reasons alone. Money has never appealed to me as the all-powerful thing in life. I have always had enough for creature comforts, and as for adventure I had had my fill during the Boer war and my world wanderings. No, I joined the German secret service for quite a different reason. I was thinking of the influences that had pressed me out of my destined groove, by every human right my own. I remember how sanguine I was that through the service I ought to gain the things I had lost. But had occult powers been given me I never would have taken up secret service work. But one is not quite as wise at twenty-four as at thirty-nine.

I shall never forget the initial instructions I received from Herr von Stammer, private secretary of Captain Tapken, then head of this department of the secret service. A very astute and calculating gentleman is Herr von Stammer. Suave, genial, talkative, he has the plausible and unassuming air of extracting information without committing himself in return. A marvelous encyclopedia of devious secret service facts, an ideal tutor.

When we were alone in his office, von Stammer began by saying abruptly:

"From now on, you must be entirely and absolutely at our service. You will report daily at twelve noon by telephoning a certain number. At all times you must be accessible. You will pay close attention to the following rules:

"Absolute silence in regard to your missions. No conversation with minor officials, but only with the respective heads of departments or to whomever you are sent. You will make no memoranda nor carry written documents. You will never discuss your affairs with any employee in the service whom you may meet. You are not likely to meet many. It is strictly against the rules to become friendly or intimate with any agent. You must abstain from intoxicating liquors. You are not permitted to have any women life and that of her three-year-old child by killing a big mountain lioness with a blow from a rifle after the animal, wounded, had charged her. Her husband trapped three lion cubs, and it is supposed they were the lioness's litter, and that she trailed him to the cabin. The woman saw the lioness watching the cabin, and called the baby, playing outside. Then she reached for a rifle. She took one shot at the lioness, but only wounded it. The animal then rushed at the woman, who stopping back to give herself a clear swing with the rifle, brought the butt down on the head of the lioness, killing it.

Protect the Birds.
There is every reason why the people of the farms should protect the birds, all kinds of them, which destroy the insects that are annually bringing hundreds of thousands of dollars of loss to the people of the country. The farmers and then to the world. The game birds are insectivorous, but there are all that are. There are numerous birds of the forest and field which work day in and day out for men and yet these same men who should be protecting them go out to shoot and read them unto death—exchange.

Spain's Quicksilver Output.
During 1904 and 1905 the United States led the world in the production of quicksilver, but from 1906 to date the leading producer has been Spain, whose great mines under the auspices of the output of which has been controlled by the Rothschilds and marketed chiefly in London, have proved very rich.

Origin of Knitting.
Knitting is a Scotch invention of the fifteenth century, and Scotch knitted stockings soon found their way to France. A guild of stocking knitters, too, was soon formed, with St. Francis as their patron saint. Hand knitting was not long left without machinery as a rival, for it was as long ago as 1589 that William Lee invented the knitting frame.

Warsaw Now a "Dry" Town.
London—A Warsaw dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company says the sale of spirits and wine is prohibited, even in first-class restaurants, hotels and clubs, and that Warsaw is now a completely "dry" city.

Offers Algerian Corps.
Paris—The son of the Chief Mokran, leader of the Algerian insurrection in 1871 against French authority, has volunteered to organize and lead a corps to fight with the French against Germany.

British Prisoners Suffer.
Venice—Reports from various parts of Austria-Hungary indicate that British prisoners of war have been subjected in many instances to harsh treatment. They have been insufficiently fed and badly housed amid insanitary conditions.

Many prisoners have been transferred to various points in the interior. At first they were made comfortable, and those with money were permitted to buy all the extra comforts procurable, but later all prisoners were treated alike.

Quite the Thing.
I must congratulate you, Mrs. Come up, on your daughter's savoir-faire. "Yes, and it's every bit imported."

That Was Different.
First Telegrapher—"Out of a job, are you?" Second—"Did the boss catch you flitting?" Second Ditto—"No, I caught the boss that way. You must come to our wedding, dear."

Please, teacher, he gasped, "something's wrong with Miss Brown."
"What do you mean, Charlie?"
"Please, teacher, she don't know where her room is!"
"What makes you think she doesn't know, Charlie?"
"Cause she asked me if I knew."

You don't move money when you buy cheap or inferior baking powder. Don't be misled. Buy Calumet. It's more economical—more wholesome—gives better results. Calumet is far superior to any other brand.

His School Report.

"What did they say to you?" asked little Harry's mother, after his first visit to the new Sunday school.

"The teacher said she was glad to see me there."

"Yes?"

"And she said she hoped I would come every Sunday."

"And was that all she said?"

"No, she asked me if our family belonged to that abomination."

Naturally.

"What does her husband do when she asks him to foot her bills?"

"Kicks about it."

Mamma's Kiss.

This pretty child story is from the French.

A mother tells her little girl that because she has been naughty she will not kiss her for a week. Before two days have gone by the child's lips hunger so for her mother's kiss that she begs her not to punish her any more.

The mother says: "No, my dear. I told you that I should not kiss you, and I must keep my word."

"But, mamma, mamma, says the little girl, 'would it be breaking your word if you should kiss me just once tonight when I am asleep?'"

The lady was the owner of a small shop, where she sold the latest fashions in hats and shoes. She was a very clever woman, and her shop was the best in the town.

"You must be doing well," remarked the gentleman, frequently.

"Oh yes," the lady would reply, "it's a good business."

But she did not disclose that besides the moderate drawings, the bag contained the counter weights. The canny lover only discovered that fact after marriage.

Map of the Universe, Almost Completed, a Most Interesting Scientific Work.

A map of the visible universe, upon which the astronomers of the world have been working for 25 years, is almost complete. It will contain every star which can be found by the most powerful telescope. The number will not be less than 100,000,000.

Some of the stars which will be represented have never been seen by the eye of man, and probably never will be seen. They are caught and recorded by the photographic plate, which is more sensitive to light than the retina of the human eye.

The immensities of space which will be represented on the map are far beyond human comprehension or imagination. The distances of the stars are so great that to represent them in miles carries no understanding to the brain. The size of some of the stars, which have been measured with satisfactory accuracy, is almost equally beyond the mind's grasp. As for the nebulae, there are astronomers who believe that they are further universes, great star groups in themselves as tremendous as the whole visible universe. Yet these nebulae are so incomprehensibly remote that only two of them are visible, as tiny haze stars, to the naked eye.

The map of the heavens should be an inspiration even to the layman. Contemplation of immensities which

SYNOPSIS.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds move into their new bungalow—$200 down, balance same as rent—on Staten Island. Mrs. Collins, a neighbor, calls before the household goods are set in order. Spring, Dick Meade, newspaper man, cynic, socialist, takes dinner and spends the night. The Reynolds seem comfortable in their home, but with a hint of loneliness. Jane Reynolds goes to a city matinee with Mrs. Collins, and by her companion's advice pretends sickness to cover her neglect to provide dinner for the night. Dick Meade, forger, is called to the door by a woman who says she is a member of the "system," who is expected to call. Jane confesses that the money for the butcher's bill has gone for a new hat. Bob pleasantly rebuffs her of the "system" and goes to bed. Dick preaches socialism. Brand, promoter, member of the "system," calls. Brand, Hudson Cement Company president, offers Bob $50,000 to use his position as chemist with the United Construction Company to check the specifications for cement work on the Pecos River dam. Jane overhears and asks Bob to accept. His refusal, in the face of their poverty, chills her.

CHAPTER VII—Continued.

Brand sent the car ahead at a faster clip. Mrs. Collins, seated in the rear of the deep tonneau, and occupied chiefly in retaining possession of her ponderous headpiece, had no opportunity to join in or even hear the conversation of the two in front. The millionaire glanced back and smiled. There was a clear stretch of road ahead. He turned to Jane.

"Now, Mrs. Reynolds," he began, "let's get down to business. You heard our talk about the dam and the money?"

"Every word of it."

"And you believe everything I said—because it's true, isn't it?"

"I know it's true."

"Good. Here's the idea. We've got to make Bob take this money. Your part of the job is to bring him to his senses and my part of it is to hand over the cash. Now, there's no hurry. It's going to take a long time to build this dam. You've got six weeks before we deliver the first order. If you're as smart as Mrs. Brand and as sensible as I think you are, you'll move out of that little bungalow back there before the six weeks are over. All you have to do is to guide him—gradually, but firmly. And I will help you. If you say the word, we'll form a little company right here, and as a working member of the company you will be entitled to some remuneration. This is merely a fair business view of it. While my chief motive in coming to Bob was to help him out of the rut, I'm not trying to conceal the fact that his gain is also my company's gain. If you become a party to this plan to make him listen to reason, you are entitled to some reward whether we are successful or not, and so, Mrs. Reynolds, I'm going to sort of put you on the payroll. We'll give Bob a little glimpse of a few comforts without letting him know anything about it."

Jane laughed, but she blushed in spite of herself. Brand's words were very clear and the prospects they presented were alluring. Inwardly, however, she had grave doubts about the propriety of accepting money from a man who was almost a stranger, even if it were for services rendered. But she made no avowal of refusal. The speeding auto, the immediate exhilaration, the thought of gratification of a few desires and escape from her impetuous plight stirred up the bacteria of self-indulgence that had awakened and spread poison throughout the whole structure of her character. Brand watched her; he read the mental struggle and he struck home.

"Why, if you think it isn't right for you to accept any reward, just regard it in the nature of an advance. We are sure to succeed and then when you have the forty thousand, you can reimburse me, if you want, for the few favors extended now. We'll have that understood."

Forty thousand dollars! Forty thousand dollars! Forty thousand dollars! The figures ran in wild frolic through her brain and danced before her eyes. The bill boards, as they flashed past, were emblazoned with them. She looked ahead and rows of figures were stretched across the road. The car ran through them and over them, but everywhere they sprang up and leered and beckoned. Forty thousand dollars! And she hadn't had forty dollars of her own in six months. Well, she wasn't going to be a fool any longer. Brand knew the way. His way would be her way. She turned to him quickly.

"I'll do anything that you think best to make Bob understand," she said.

"Fine!" he exclaimed. "Now I can see the battle won."

They rode on in silence for several minutes. At length Jane said:

"But I don't feel entirely comfortable about this auto ride—the fact that I'm doing something without Bob's knowledge. He is so good to me and so willing to do everything he can, or thinks he can, that occasionally I feel that I ought to be content; content to share whatever he does, or has, or plans. But, then, I just can't, that's all. If I wasn't sure that I was working for him, helping him where he won't help himself, I would despise myself. But I am helping him, I know. The end justifies the means, and he can't blame me in the end, can he?"

"Certainly not," responded the millionaire. He leaned over and touched a lever that sent his big machine ahead still faster.

Slow music and moonlight are a subconscious aid to lovers. Just as the quickening speed of a big automobile thrills, accelerates and enhances a cause like Brand's. He was a practical man and didn't overlook any of these little fine points. He heard the girl at his side draw a deep breath.

"That is just it, Mrs. Reynolds," he argued. "Helping him where he won't help himself. Your husband is capable enough and broad enough, but he's got the wrong track. He is like the big mogul engine at the head of a through express, stalled at a crossing, by a slow-moving freight. The power is there, the ability to rush ahead, but the road is clogged by the ponderous baggage of his own deluded ideas; his foolish standard of morality, or whatever he calls it. You must be the switchman who clears the track. You must show him the way and then he will plunge forward."

"Why, I tell you at school he was a leader. He showed the way and we followed. If anybody had said: 'In five years Reynolds will be earning thirty hundred dollars a year and Brand fifty thousand,' he would have been lynched or taken up before a sanitary board. What can be ever accomplished if he sticks to this policy of working for his money? Work, yes. We all work, but we work with our brains. Twenty-five dollars a week. Why, in two years, if he's lucky, he'll be getting thirty-five and in five years fifty. And what will you have? By the time you have paid for your home in this God-forsaken place you'll be past middle age, and by the time you have saved a few thousand dollars, if you do save it, you'll be old. What good will it do you then? The best part of your life will be gone. You'll be a nice, respectable couple able to buy a lot in a first-class cemetery and finish your days in the hope that some of your children will do a little better than you did."

"Success in this life is so easy if you only court it. You have to take it by the hand and smile and joke. It's like a wide-awake, pretty girl. No matter how much you love her if you always greet her with a solemn face and doleful talk the chances are ten to one that the fellow will come along

THE NATIONAL RIVERS AND HARBORS CONGRESS.

The Tribune is in receipt of a copy of the official call of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, which will be held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the 9th, 10th and 11th of December, at Washington, D. C.

The call also has a considerable amount of talk, information and otherwise, relative to the urgent need there is for good big appropriations for improving the waterways of the country. The pamphlet claims that there has been a declaration of war against the waterways of the country and intimates that this is done for the purpose of benefiting the railroads, which they say, are inadequate to handle the business of the country.

This waterway proposition has received considerable airing during the past few years, and demonstrations have been made to show that all kinds of commodities can be shipped by water much cheaper than they can by rail. The demonstrations have also shown that the things that were shipped by canal boat traveled faster and reached their destination sooner than they would had they been placed on a train and started for their destination.

Under the circumstances of cheaper transportation and quicker service one would think that the people would avail themselves of the opportunities offered to ship their commodities by boat.

But they do not. Notwithstanding the cheapness and the alleged quickness, freighting has fallen off by water in the last twenty-five years so that at the present time, there is little doing in this line, and the result is that many of the boats have gone out of commission and no new ones are being built to take their place.

Any man who has spent any time along the upper Mississippi knows that the government is spending millions of dollars there every year in deepening and straightening the channel of that river, while as a matter of fact there is not a freight boat passing up or down the river on an average of once a week, and only occasionally a passenger boat with a gang of excursionists who are bent on pleasure.

There are harbors on Lake Michigan that have received an appropriation every time congress met for the past half a century, and they have no harbor there now, nor did they ever have one. And they would have no particular use for the harbor, even if they did have one. They have nothing to ship out that could be carried profitably by boat and the people do not get their supplies in that manner.

Water transportation is all right if there is no other method of conveying things. When you order something from the city it may not take more than a week to get the article, and then it may take three weeks, and if it happens to be late in the fall the article may get hung up somewhere and it will not put in its appearance until navigation opens in the spring, if it does then.

Maybe the reason the people have decared war against the rivers and harbors is because they have become weary of having their money spent in such useless manner and want to see it stopped. The river and harbor appropriation at one time was looked upon as something sort of sacred; to say a word against it was like kicking against education, but those days seem to have passed away, and now the people want to see something coming back for the immense amounts of money that are being dumped into the streams every year.

It may be that the railroads have been hogish in their charges and have made immense amounts of money, but any person who has had experience with water transportation lines, where they had a cinch on the business, know that they were quite adept in the matter of getting all there was in a proposition.

There used to be a transportation line over on Lake Michigan that was operated by two brothers, both of whom amassed quite a fortune in the business. Their ability to charge all the traffic would bear was notorious, and they used to tell a story about them to illustrate their method in holding up the people, which was as follows:

Some freight was being handled that was comparatively new to them, and one of the brothers asked the other about what the charges should be for transporting the stuff. "Why," said the brother, "charge all your conscience will allow, and then double it for my share."

Anybody who has lived where he was at the mercy of a boat line for any length of time would hesitate a long time before he would go back to it again if the opportunity were offered him.

We say, keep up the war on the river and harbors appropriation.

WILSON UPHELD, SAYS AYLWARD.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 10.—In the fact that the Democrats retain control of both houses of congress, John A. Aylward sees proof that the country has upheld the administration of President Wilson.

"In drawing conclusions from the results of the congressional election," he said, "we should remember that Wisconsin is normally a strong Republican state. This is apparent from the combined votes of Tait and Roosevelt two years ago, and of Philipp and Blaine now.

"Second, there is and has been a period of world wide oppression for more than two years past. During this time President Wilson and the Democratic congress have enacted a substantial downward revision of the tariff. This was long demanded, but business has not yet fully adjusted itself to the new tariff. Congress has enacted a most salutary but radical revision of our entire banking laws. No one now questions the beneficial effects when it becomes operative, but in the meantime the banks have been holding money to inaugurate the change.

War Hurt U. S. Trade.

"In this situation the greatest war in history suddenly broke like a terrific storm over Europe. This not only for the time being destroyed our best and largest foreign markets, but also closed many of our factories.

"Our revenue on imports was largely shut off, and this necessitated an annual war tax of $160,000,000. The dread of what might happen has driven money into hiding.

Great Moral Victory.

"It was to have been expected, therefore, that an election at this crisis in our affairs would necessarily show losses in the house to the party in power. Considering the situation the results are, in my judgment, a great moral victory for the president and the congress that had the courage to carry out the platform pledges of its party. The result in the congressional election, by which the Democratic party retains control of the house and senate, is proof of the confidence which the people have in the president and the work he has accomplished."

FIGHT AGAINST FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9.—The Secretary of Agriculture has issued the following statement regarding the quarantine for foot-and-mouth diseases:

The present outbreak of the foot-and-mouth disease, which is one of the most contagious and destructive diseases of cattle, swine and sheep, exceeds in area effected any of the five previous outbreaks in this country. Unless the infection can be immediately localized and quickly eradicated, it threatens untold losses among live stock.

So contagious is the disease that in past outbreaks where but one animal in a herd was infected, the entire herd in almost all cases later contracted the sickness. While the mortality is not high the effects of the disease even on animals that recover are such as to make them practically useless. They lose flesh rapidly; in the case of cows, the milk dries up or is made dangerous for human consumption; in the case of breeding animals, the animal once infected becomes valueless for breeding, as it may continue to be a constant carrier of contagion.

It is possible to cure the external symptoms but during the process of attempting to cure one sick animal the chances are that hundreds of others may be infected. The treatment or killing of a single animal in a herd was tried in an outbreak and did not prove effective for the reason that the remainder of the herd soon became affected and had to be killed.

As a result of the five outbreaks in this country, and other disastrous epidemics of the diseases in Europe and Great Britain, veterinary authorities of the United States are agreed that the only method of combating the disease is to stop all movement of stock and material which have been subjected to any danger of infection, and to kill off without delay all herds in which the disease has gained any foothold. This enables the authorities to eradicate affected herds and to isolate and hold under observation all suspected herds.

For these reasons, the Department of Agriculture has already quarantined ten States for the foot-and-mouth disease. The Federal quarantine prevents all interstate movement of stock and materials likely to carry the infection. At the same time, the State authorities are imposing local quarantines which prevent the passage of animals from farms or localities known to be infected to other localities in the same State in which the disease has not appeared. Each infected herd, as rapidly as the disease is discovered, is killed and the dead animals buried in a covering of lime. The skins of the animals are slashed so as to permit the rapid action of the lime.

The owner of the slaughtered animals is reimbursed on the basis of the appraised value of the herd, the appraiser being appointed by the State. The expense of the whole process of the extermination and disinfection is divided equally between the Federal and State Governments.

Until the entire premises have been thoroughly disinfected and all danger of spreading the disease removed, the farm is quarantined by the local authorities in the same way in which it would be for a contagious human disease. This local quarantine prevents the visit of individuals or the transfer of any produce or animals from the farm to other farms. In some cases, because human beings can carry the disease to other herds, the state authorities have prevented children on infected farms from attending school. In other cases, as in Illinois and Ohio, the State authorities have closed the stockyards until they can be cleaned and disinfected.

The first effort of the Department is to discover and segregate all animals sick with the disease or that have been exposed. To this end, the Federal and State inspectors are now tracing up, through bills of lading and railroad records, all shipments of live cattle which have been made during the last sixty days out of any of the infected or suspected districts.

The herds of animals so shipped are located and immediately examined by veterinarians. In this way the presence of foot-and-mouth disease has been discovered in various places in the present wide area now under Federal quarantine, which, includes Massachusetts, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois, Maryland, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Iowa. Similarly, the numbers of all cars in which animals have been transported from the infected districts have been obtained, and these are being located and thoroughly cleaned and disinfected.

Following the imposition of a general Federal quarantine, and the killing of actually infected herds, comes a farm-to-farm inspection of the entire quarantine area. Later, when it becomes clear that the disease has been localized it will be possible for the Federal and State authorities to free from quarantine all but the actually infected counties or districts, and allow the unfettered territories to resume interstate shipments of stock.

History of Present Outbreak.

The present outbreak first appeared in southern Michigan. How it was introduced there is not known. Shipments of diseased hogs from this place which passed to Chicago are believed to be responsible for the infection of the pens in the Union Stockyards. Once the yards became infected there was danger that every shipment of live stock through Chicago to other parts of the country might pick up the germs of the disease and spread the contagion. These shipments, composed largely of feeders and stockers, were sent to farms for fattening and did not remain in Chicago long enough for the disease to show itself in external symptoms. Some of the cattle, carrying the contagion, after shipment develop external lesions and this accounts for the outbreak of the disease in States as far apart as Iowa and Massachusetts. For this reason a large force of Federal inspectors is now running down every shipment and examining the animals or herds at their place of delivery.

At present the chief danger lies in the possibility of there being concealed sources of infection. Every effort is being made by State and Federal authorities, not only to trace suspicious shipments, but to convince farmers of the seriousness of the disease and the extreme ease with which it is communicated, an dte urge upon them to report at once to State or Federal authorities all suspicious cases of sore mouths or lameness.

MEEHAN.

Miss Frances Bannach, Supt. of schools of Portage county, was calling here last week.

John Porter president of the Stockton Ins. Co., was transacting official business here Thursday.

George and Matt Hale visited over Sunday with relatives at Auburn-dale.

Mr. and Mrs. Roe and daughter Mabel came up from Saratoga Saturday for a few days visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Ward of Rudolph are spending a few days here at the home of Harry Slack.

The Sunday school will send several delegates to the state convention which is being held at Grand Rapids this week.

The Halloween program at the school house Saturday night was well attended. All seemed to enjoy the amusement especially the ghosts, witches, jack o' lanterns, etc.

A woven wire fence was built around our school grounds last Saturday. This was done to enable the teachers to keep the smaller children from the railroad track and public highway which is quite a dangerous place for them some times of the year.

Walter Clusman who arrived home from California recently for a visit expects to return to the west again soon and is one of the few who prefers the west to good old Wisconsin.

It may be of interest to some to know that the Pickle Co. will buy cucumbers here again next season. An agent was here last week making preliminary arrangements and assures the people of a square deal and possibly a better price for the products.

Potatoes and polities have kept our little burg going some, for the last few weeks, but now that election is over and the potatoes are mostly taken care of we have more time to devote to the troubles across the pond and as we read of that terrible war and then look around our pleasant farms and peaceful neighborhoods, we can truly feel thankful that we are citizens of the good old U. S.

W.C. WEISEL

THE NATIONAL RIVERS AND HARBORS CONGRESS.

The Tribune is in receipt of a copy of the official call of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, which will be held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the 9th, 10th and 11th of December, at Washington, D. C. The call also has a considerable amount of talk, information and otherwise, relative to the urgent need there is for good big appropriations for improving the waterways of the country. The pamphlet claims that there has been a declaration of war against the waterways of the country and intimates that this is done for the purpose of benefiting the railroads, which they say, are inadequate to handle the business of the country.

This waterway proposition has received considerable airing during the past few years, and demonstrations have been made to show that all kinds of commodities can be shipped by water much cheaper than they can by rail. The demonstrations have also shown that the things that were shipped by canal boat traveled faster and reached their destination sooner than they would have been placed on a train and started for their destination.

Under the circumstances of cheaper transportation and quicker service one would think that the people would avail themselves of the opportunities offered to ship their commodities by boat.

But they do not. Notwithstanding the cheapness and the alleged quickness, freighting has fallen off by water in the last twenty-five years so that at the present time, there is little doing in this line, and the result is that many of the boats have gone out of commission and no new ones are being built to take their place.

Any man who has spent any time along the upper Mississippi knows that the government is spending millions of dollars there every year in deepening and straightening the channel of that river, while as a matter of fact there is not a freight boat passing up or down the river on an average of once a week, and only occasionally a passenger boat with a gang of excursionists who are bent on pleasure.

There are harbors on Lake Michigan that have received an appropriation every time congress is in session for the past half a century, and they have no harbor there now, nor did they ever have one. And they would have no particular use for the harbor, even if they did have one. They have nothing to ship out that could be carried profitably by boat and the people do not get their supplies in that manner.

Water transportation is all right if there is no other method of conveying things. When you order something from the city it may not take more than a week to get the article, and then it may take three weeks, and if it happens to be late in the fall the article may get hung up somewhere and it will not put in its appearance until navigation opens in the spring, if it does then.

Maybe the reason the people have decried war against the rivers and harbors is because they have become weary of having their money spent in such useless manner and want to see it stopped. The river and harbor appropriation at one time was looked upon as something sort of sacred, to say a word against it was like kicking against education, but those days seem to have passed away, and now the people want to see something coming back for the immense amounts of money that are being dumped into the streams every year.

It may be that the railroads have been hogish in their charges and have made immense amounts of money, but any person who has had experience with water transportation lines, where they had a cluck on the business, know that they were quite adept in the matter of getting all there was in a proposition.

There used to be a transportation line over on Lake Michigan that was operated by two brothers, both of whom amassed quite a fortune in the business. Their ability to charge all the traffic would bear was notorious, and they used to tell a story about them to illustrate their method in holding up the people, which was as follows:

Some freight was being handled that was comparatively new to them, and one of the brothers asked the other about what the charges should be for transporting the stuff. "Why," said the brother, "charge all your conscience will allow, and then double it for my share."

Anybody who has lived where he was at the mercy of a boat line for any length of time would hesitate a long time before he would go back to it again if the opportunity were offered him.

We say, keep up the war on the river and harbors appropriation.

WILSON UPHELD, SAYS AYLWARD.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 10.—In the fact that the Democrats retain control of both houses of congress, John A. Aylward sees proof that the country has upheld the administration of President Wilson.

"In drawing conclusions from the results of the congressional election," he said, "we should remember that Wisconsin is normally a strong Republican state. This is apparent from the combined votes of Taft and Roosevelt two years ago, and of Phillips and Blaine now.

War Hurt U. S. Trade.

"In this situation the greatest war in history suddenly broke like a terrible storm over Europe. This not only for the time being destroyed our best and largest foreign markets, but also closed many of our factories.

"Our revenue on imports was largely shut off, and this necessitated an annual war tax of $100,000,000. The dread of what might happen has driven money into hiding.

Great Moral Victory.

"It was to have been expected, therefore, that an election at this crisis in our affairs would necessarily show losses in the house to the party in power. Considering the situation the results are, in my judgment, a great moral victory for the president and the congress that had the courage to carry out the platform pledges of its party. The result in the congressional election, by which the Democratic party retains control of the house and senate, is proof of the confidence which the people have in the president and the work he has accomplished."

FIGHT AGAINST FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9.—The Secretary of Agriculture has issued the following statement regarding the quarantine for foot-and-mouth disease:

The present outbreak of the foot-and-mouth disease, which is one of the most contagious and destructive diseases of cattle, swine and sheep, has been traced to the introduction of the virus into this country. Unless the infection can be immediately localized and quickly eradicated, it threatens untold losses among live stock.

So contagious is the disease that in past outbreaks where but one animal in a herd was infected, the entire herd in almost all cases later contracted the sickness. While the mortality is not high the effects of the disease even on animals that recover are such as to make them practically useless. They lose flesh rapidly; in the case of cows, the milk dries up or is made dangerous for human consumption; in the case of breeding animals, the animal once infected becomes valueless for breeding, and it may continue to be a constant carrier of contagion.

It is possible to cure the external symptoms but during the process of attempting to cure one sick animal the chances are that hundreds of others may be infected. The treatment or killing of a single animal in a herd was tried in an outbreak and did not prove effective for the reason that the remainder of the herd soon became affected and had to be killed.

As a result of the five outbreaks in this country, and other disastrous epidemics of the diseases in Europe and Great Britain, veterinary authorities of the United States are agreed that the only method of combating the disease is to stop all movement of stock and material which have been subjected to any danger of infection, and to kill off without delay all herds in which the disease has gained any foothold. This enables the authorities to eradicate affected herds and to isolate and hold under observation all suspected herds.

For the purpose of the Department of Agriculture has already quarantined ten States for the foot-and-mouth disease. The Federal quarantine prevents all interstate movement of stock and materials likely to carry the infection. At the same time, the State authorities are imposing local quarantines which prevent the passage of animals which prevent the passage of animals known to be infected to other localities in the same State in which the disease has not appeared. Each infected herd, as rapidly as the disease is discovered, is killed and the dead animals buried in a covering of lime. The skins of the animals are slashed so as to permit the rapid action of the lime.

The owner of the slaughtered animals is reimbursed on basis of the appraised value of the herd, the appraiser being appointed by the State. The expense of the whole process of condemnation and disinfection is divided equally between the Federal and State Governments.

Until the entire premises have been thoroughly disinfected and all danger of spreading the disease removed, the farm is quarantined by the local authorities in the same way in which it would be for a contagious human disease. This local quarantine prevents the visit of individuals or the transfer of any produce or animals from the farm to other farms. In some cases, because human beings can carry the disease to other herds, the state authorities have prevented children on infected farms from attending school. In other cases, as in Illinois and Ohio, the State authorities have closed the stockyards until they can be cleaned and disinfected.

The first effort of the Department is to discover and segregate all animals sick with the disease or that have been exposed. To this end, the Federal and State inspectors are now tracing up, through bills of lading and railroad records, all shipments of live cattle which have been made during the last sixty days out of any of the infected or suspected districts. The herds of animals so shipped are located and immediately examined by veterinarians. In this way the presence of foot-and-mouth disease has been discovered in various places in the present live area now under Federal quarantine, which includes Massachusetts, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois, Maryland, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Iowa. Similarly, the numbers of all cars in which animals have been transported from these districts have been obtained, and these are being located and thoroughly cleaned and disinfected.

Following the imposition of a general Federal quarantine, and the killing of actually infected herds, comes a farm-to-farm inspection of the entire quarantine area. Later, when it becomes clear that the disease has been localized it will be possible for the Federal and State authorities to free from quarantine all but the actually infected counties or districts, and allow the unaffected territories to resume interstate shipments of stock.

History of Present Outbreak. The present outbreak first appeared in southern Michigan. How it was introduced there is not known. Shipments of diseased hogs from this place which passed to Chicago are believed to be responsible for the infection of the pens in the Union Stockyards. Once the yards became infected there was danger that every shipment of live stock through Chicago to other parts of the country might pick up the germs of the disease and spread the contagion. These shipments, composed largely of feeders and stockers, were sent to farms for fattening and did not remain in Chicago long enough for the disease to show itself in external symptoms. Some of the cattle, carrying the contagion, after shipment develop external lesions and this accounts for the outbreak of the disease in States as far apart as Iowa and Massachusetts. For this reason a large force of Federal inspectors is now running down every shipment and examining the animals or herds at their place of delivery.

At present the chief danger lies in the possibility of there being concealed sources of infection. Every effort is being made by State and Federal authorities, not only to trace suspicious shipments, but to convince farmers of the seriousness of the disease and the extreme ease with which it is communicated, an due upon them to report at once to State or Federal authorities all suspicious cases of sore mouths or lameness.

MECHAN.

Miss Frances Bannach, Supt. of schools of Portage county, was calling here last week.

John Porter, president of the Stockton Ins. Co. was transacting official business here Thursday.

George and Matt Hale visited over Sunday with relatives at Auburndale.

Mr. and Mrs. Roe and daughter Mabel came up from Saratoga Saturday for a few days visit. Mr. and Mrs. Byron Ward of Rudolph are spending a few days here at the home of Harry Slack.

The Sunday school will send several delegates to the state convention which is being held at Grand Rapids this week.

The Halloween program at the school house Saturday night was well attended. All seemed to enjoy the amusement, especially the ghosts, witches, jack o' lanterns, etc.

A woven wire fence was built around our school grounds last Saturday. This was done to enable the teachers to keep the smaller children from the railroad track and public highway which is quite a dangerous place for them some times of the year.

Walter Gussman who arrived home from California recently for a visit expects to return to the west again soon and is one of the few who prefers the west to good old Wisconsin.

It may be of interest to some to know that the Pickle Co. will buy cucumbers here again next season. An agent was here last week making preliminary arrangements and assure the people of a square deal and possibly a better price for the products.

Potatoes and pollies have kept our little burg going some, for the last few weeks, but now that election is over and the potatoes are mostly taken care of we have more time to devote to the troubles across the pond and as we read of that terrible war and then look around our pleasant farms and peaceful neighborhoods, we can truly feel thankful that we are citizens of the good old U. S.

The afternoon was very pleasantly spent by those in attendance. Wm. Welch drew ten days in the county jail in Judge Pomerville's court on Saturday for using abusive language. A. S. Sayles was also given five days in jail for being drunk. Sayles had been previously been ordered from the city, but had failed to make himself scarce. Mrs. Bertin amsay and daughter, Mrs. Hugh Park, motored up from Appleton last Wednesday to spend a few days visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. MacKinnon. They returned home Monday by train, having found the weather rather too cool to be comfortable for autoing. Louis Hoffman, son of Max Hoffman of Marshfield, was sent to the industrial school at Waukesha on Friday by Judge Conway. The young fellow, who is sixteen years old, had become so that his parents could not manage him, and it was found necessary to take this course with him. Max Marzocofka traded his 120 acre farm in the town of Seneca last week to John Felt of Kaukauna for property in that city. Both parties taking possession of their properties this week. The deal was made by John Zaloudek of this city a recent arrival who is engaged in the real estate business on the west side. Mrs. Frank Carey who has been visiting in Milwaukee the past week is at present visiting with her parents in Michigan. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Yetter and family and Mr. and Mrs. William Yetter spent Sunday at the Reinhart Teske home in the town of Seneca. They were out there in company with a number of others to celebrate Mr. Teske's birthday, he having reached the age of fifty years. Mr. Teske was presented with a suit of clothes by the visitors and the day was spent in a very pleasant manner by all present. Father is supposed to be the head of the household. But when mother has completed the Monday morning wash, give the line the once over and you will see about four furlongs of white skirts, corset covers, stockings, gauze vests, etc. that father couldn't wear. And down at the end, in a shady corner, you will see two old raggedy socks, an undershirt and a torn handkerchief. That is father's share of the wash. Miss Myrtle Rowland was the guest of honor at the Ever Ready Bible Class of the M. E. church at the home of Mrs. C. E. Tucker on Doty avenue last evening. The affair being a China shower in honor of Miss Rowland's approaching marriage which occurs the latter part of this month. She was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. A lunch was served and all who were present enjoyed a delightful evening.—Neenah Times. The Stevens Point Daily Journal of Monday last got out a special edition printed on book paper which contained a writer of the city and a large number of half tone pictures of the public buildings and private residences of the city. It was nicely gotten up and the pictures showed up in fine shape and was withal a good boost for the city. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hastings of Tacoma, Wash., are visiting at the home of Dr. A. L. Ridgman for several days. Atty. J. J. Jeffrey, Drs. Carl Bandelin, W. D. Harvie, E. J. Clark, Chas. Natwick, A. P. Hirzy, Clark Lyon and Roy Lester have gone to the wilds of Sawyer county where they will spend two weeks hunting deer. They will be located about seven miles from Winter. Almond Press.—J. J. Brigham has purchased the interest of Will Rath in the Brigham & Rath restaurant in Grand Rapids and has moved to that city to take possession of the same. Mr. Rath has gone to Milwaukee where he has secured a position as a salesman. Mrs. George W. Paulus returned on Monday from St. Paul, where she had been called by the illness of a friend. SOUTH SARATOGA. The Charles Lundberg family have the new addition to their home well toward completion externally. We are pleased to note each added improvement to our community. Walter Burmeister has moved into his new home. This is another improvement greatly adding to the appearance of our locality. We are looking forward to a pleasant monthly meeting of our church society at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Johnson Thursday, the 19th. Mr. E. C. Ekinan sold a grade Holstein bull at the monthly stock fair Tuesday. Before he gets her he figures that she is going to live on Love and Kisses. But after he gets her he is always kicking about the bills for Corned Beef and Cabbage. FROM WORMS TO MAN. In 1865 France was suffering a loss to its silk industry of $20,000,000 per year as a result of a mysterious disease of silk worms. Finally, in desperation, the authorities engaged Louis Pasteur to learn the cause of the disease and to eradicate it. By simple but comprehensive study and work, he was able, in a single year, to create a net profit of over $5,000,000 on the sale of vaccine of one estate, which, previous to his handling, had not met expenses. As a result of readily appreciable value of the scientific methods of his investigation and handling, he was given another and similar problem to solve. Anthrax had become prevalent amongst cattle of France and it was feared that unless its ravages could be checked and controlled the disease might destroy millions of dollars worth of valuable property. By similar methods he discovered the cause and means of preventing the disease. The anthrax amongst cattle has not been entirely eradicated is due solely to the fact that Pasteur's teaching is sometimes and somewhere ignored. In studying the cause of chicken cholera, he accidentally discovered a vaccine by means of which he could prevent the disease. He extended this to anthrax vaccination by patient experimentation. What was accomplished by Pasteur in the eradication of disease amongst worms, cattle, and fowl, might be accomplished in the realm of human disease were the money value of human life better appreciated. Indeed, wonderful things are being accomplished; but not nearly so much as might be. While Pasteur's main efforts were given to disease amongst animals, one piece of work had far-reaching consequences for man. It was his study of rubs or mad dogs of dogs which led to the so-called Pasteur treatment which is an absolute preventive of death and disease amongst human beings who have been bitten by a mad dog. In spite of the fact that Louis Pasteur's work was responsible for the saving of millions of dollars for the people of France, he died a comparatively poor man. This fact has been instanced by many "practical" people to justify the commercialization of great scientific medical discoveries. Certainly it is true that no man who has served his fellows and their business so well as Louis Pasteur did should ever want any of the reasonable luxuries and comforts which money could provide. Nevertheless, it is doubtful if any great financial genius has ever left to his family a greater heritage than was left by Pasteur. Titles, landed estates, hosts of servants and other possessions of wealth, would have been irksome to this great man. They would have interfered with his work. NEW ROME. Mrs. Wm. Ellis and Miss Ruth Fredrickson left on Monday for St. Paul, where Miss Fredrickson was to meet her father, whom she had not seen for ten years, having been making her home at the Ellis place here. Miss Fredrickson will go with her father to Roswell, S. D., where several of her brothers reside and where the family will make their home. Mr. and Mrs. John Lundquist and family spent Sunday at the Irving home. "Twas Ever Thus.

Four people were riding along in an automobile one day, and in attempting to cross a railroad, their engine "died" while the machine was on the rails, a train coming along at about a mile a minute, hit the automobile and threw all the occupants out and missed up the right of way with them. None of them were killed but all unconscious. As they lay there on the ground a Jew peddler came along and saw them. He looked around and ascertained that they were not dead and then went to the one who seemed the least hurt and shook him gently. "Wake up, mein friend," said the Hebrew. The man opened his eyes. "Vass you all hurt pretty much?" inquired the peddler. The man nodded affirmatively. "Didd de doctor was here yet?" asked the travelling merchant. The man nodded negatively. "Didd de claim agent de railroad company vass here yet?" persisted the Jew. "Not yet." "Vell den," said the peddler in a low voice, "do you got any objection if I lay down here mit you fellows?"

Death of Mrs. Mary Webber.

Mrs. Mary Webber died on Wednesday of last week at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Joe Patrick in the town of Sigel after an illness of some length. Deceased, who was born in Austria, was 83 years old. She came to this country when 31 years of age and lived for a number of years in Kewaukee county, this state. Later she moved to Wood county with her husband, the family settling on a farm in the town of Milladore, where they resided for a number of years. Her husband preceded her in death several years ago.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Stoll Jagodzinski and Mrs. Joe Patrick, both of the town of Sigel. The funeral was held from the Catholic church in Sigel on Friday, the remains being interred in the Catholic cemetery.

LUKE McLURE SAYS.

When the doorbell rings a woman always looks out of the window before she will answer the ring. She wants to see whether it is a collector or an agent with something. If it is an agent with something to sell she will open the door and buy something. If it is a collector trying to get an installment on something the last agent sold her she is not at home.

As long as a woman thinks that a man is jealous of her she doesn't care whether he loves her or not. The old-fashioned tad who used to wear reversible paper collars now has a son who would throw away a solid fifteen cent throat dolly before he would carry it home.

You do not have to go to a "movie" show to get the hummy effect. Just sit down and try to imagine YOUR wife, the Wif of your heart, the Wif that you like next to yourself, wearing the hoop skirts that are threatened for next summer.

The basques of 1883 are back in style and it is a cinch that the dollman, the bustle and the Perry Bonnet will follow. We can stand for all of these, but for the love of Mike don't bring back the Whatnot.

ELKS HOLD SKAT TOURNAMENT

First Session by Local Lodge Proves to Be Very Successful.

The local lodge of Elks held the first of their series of Skat tournaments at their lodge room on Friday evening. The attendance numbered thirty-six. The prizes were awarded as follows:

Oscar Gehling, highest number of games, 15.
D. B. Phillico, highest number of points, 640.
Jacob Lutz, solo against largest number of matadores, hearts against 5, 60 points.
Dr. Ruckle, 2d largest number of points, 530.
Sam Church, second highest number of points, 530.
H. B. Weiland, high hand, 140.
Dr. Looze, highest tureen, diamonds against 4, and schneider, 30.
It is the intention to make these tournaments monthly affairs hereafter, and there is no doubt but what there will be a larger attendance at coming events of the kind, as the committee in charge of affairs were unable to name all of the skat players of the city for the first event.

Carload of Pianos.

—Mrs. F. P. Daly has just received another carload of pianos at her place from the famous Cable company. There are some new designs in the lot, and they are all of the very latest style, and anybody who contemplates the purchase of an instrument will do well to consult Mrs. Daly. The holidays are drawing near and you are thinking of presenting any member of the family with an instrument for Christmas, now is the time to complete the arrangements. It won't cost you a cent to look over the line, and you may find just what you want.

—Do your rugs need cleaning? See L. Hathaway about it. He will do the work right.

PHILIPP ELECTED; RACE IS CLOSE FOR U. S. SENATORSHIP

REPUBLICANS CLAIM CANDIDATE
GOVERNOR HAS PLURALITY
OF 20,000.

NO CONGRESSIONAL CHANGE

All Members of Wisconsin Delegation
Re-elected—Indicates Point to Defeat of Ten Amendments.

Milwaukee, Nov. 4.—With thirteen counties missing and 481 out of 2,054 precincts from the vote on governor and United States senator stands as follows:
For Governor—Philipp, republican, 117,312; Karel, democrat, 99,494; Blaine, independent, 25,362.
For U. S. Senator—Husting, democrat, 112,744; McGovern, republican, 105,141.

Based on these returns, supporters of Paul O. Hustung, claim he will be elected to the United States senate by from 3,000 to 5,000 plurality.

The counties remaining to be heard from include Douglas, Juneau, Kewaunee, Marquette, Pierce, Polk, Price, St. Croix, Sawyer, Taylor, Vernon, Washburn and Waushara, and the republicans claim that when final returns from these usual republican strongholds are received the tide will be turned in favor of McGovern. In any event the race is going to be a close one and neither candidate will have any votes to spare.

Blaine Help to Hustung.

The independent candidacy of Blaine for governor is held responsible for Hustung's lead, as in many localities the latter's votes are equal to those cast for both Karel and McGovern. In some counties, with four country precincts missing, gives Philipp 3,500.

EMANUEL L. PHILIPP
Governor-elect of Wisconsin

Karel 4,855; Blaine 4,025; McGovern 8,569 and Hustung 6,420. It will be seen that Mr. Philipp and Mr. McGovern received practically the same vote with a few votes in favor of the governor, while Mr. Hustung ran 1,575 ahead of Mr. Karel. The logical conclusion is that a number of Blaine men cast their ballots for Mr. Hustung. The vote in Adams county was: Philipp 302; Karel 183; Blaine 144; McGovern 597; Hustung 285. Clark county vote is: Philipp 1,688; Karel 1,039; Blaine 180; McGovern 1,607; Hustung 1,231.

McGovern Makes No Claims.

At the republican state headquarters the claim was made that the governor would be elected by from 3,000 to 4,000 votes. Gov. McGovern was at the headquarters, but he was making no claims.
"I shall have nothing to say until it is certain I have been elected," he said. "The returns are favorable, however. The strong republican counties still to be heard from ought to tell the tale."

Election of Philipp Certain.

Returns now at hand leave no doubt but that Emanuel L. Philipp, republican candidate, has been elected governor and his supporters claim victory by a plurality of over 20,000. The democratic managers insist that Philipp's plurality will fall considerably below that figure. The entire republican state ticket has been elected.

Milwaukee County Vote.

Milwaukee county gives Emanuel L. Philipp, republican candidate for governor, a plurality of 2,304 votes over John C. Karel, the democratic nominee, according to practically complete returns. Mr. Philipp's total vote in the county is 22,629, of which 19,586 votes were given him in the city of Milwaukee. Karel's vote in the county was 20,325. With Mr. Philipp, the entire republican state ticket was endorsed in Milwaukee county by pluralities ranging from 2,891 for state treasurer, to 3,948 for attorney general.

Teachers Elect Officers.

La Crosse.—H. L. Gardner, superintendent of schools of Vernon county, was elected president of the Western Wisconsin Teachers' association at the closing session of the convention at the State Normal school here. F. C. Bray, Sparta, was elected vice president. George E. Sanford, West Salem, is the new secretary-treasurer, and the board of directors consists of A. H. Sanford, La Crosse; Robert Lohr, Arcadia, and Miss Lena Heide-man, La Crosse.

Reward Girl's Bravery.

Eau Claire.—Miss Regina Tangjord has been awarded a hero medal by the Ralston hero medal commission of St. Louis for her brave rescue of the little son and daughter of Rev. H. B. Kildahl of Milwaukee, from drowning in Prairie lake July 7.

De Pere Prisoner Dies.

Depere.—Patrick Golden, an old resident of this city, is dead. He was a member of the Brown county board from the Second ward of this city.

democrat, 21,499; Seidel, socialist, 18,316; McGovern, republican, 18,574.

Two republican congressmen from Milwaukee districts—William J. Cary in the Fourth and William H. Stafford in the Fifth—defeated the Social Democratic candidates Victor Berger and W. R. Gaylord.

Five nonpartisan candidates for county officer were elected—clerk of courts, county treasurer, register of deeds, coroner and county surveyor—while a democrat was re-elected county clerk. Two socialists were given county offices, Winifred C. Zabel being elected district attorney, and Edward T. Melms sheriff.

One nonpartisan, one democrat and one socialist democratic state senator were elected. Five nonpartisans were successful in contests for assembly seats, while six democrats and eight socialists were elected to the lower house of the state legislature.

On the ten proposed constitutional amendments, Milwaukee county rejected seven and approved three. The latter were the amendments providing for initiative and referendum; home rule and the recall.

No Change in Congressmen.

The congressional representation from Wisconsin remains unchanged. The hopes of the republicans that they would be able to redeem the Sixth and Ninth districts, which are normally republican but are now represented by democrats, were not realized. Both Congressman Kelly and Knop pulled through by small pluralities. In the case of Mr. Kelly it was a tight squeeze, his plurality being only a few hundred. Following are the congressmen elected:

First district—H. A. Cooper, Rep., Racine.

Second district—M. E. Burke, Dem., Beaver Dam.

Third district—J. M. Nelson, Rep., Madison.

Fourth district—W. J. Cary, Rep., Milwaukee.

Fifth district—W. H. Stafford, Rep., Milwaukee.

Sixth district—M. K. Reilly, democrat.

Seventh district—J. J. Esch, Rep., La Crosse.

Eighth district—F. E. Browne, Rep., Waupaca.

Ninth district—T. F. Knop, Dem., Kewaunee.

Tenth district—J. A. Frear, Rep., Hudson.

State Officers Are Re-Elected.

There seems to be little doubt, judging from returns, that the entire republican state ticket below governor has been elected. Secretary of State John A. Donald, Attorney General W. O. Owen, State Treasurer Henry Johnson.

Oshkosh Wants New Depot.

Oshkosh.—Oshkosh people have started a movement to have the St. Paul road build a new depot. The old one has done service for about twenty years and is of the combination freight and passenger type.

License 2,000 Hunters.

Washington.—More than 2,000 hunting permits have been issued in the county this fall. It is expected another 1,000 will be issued before the close of the season.

New Head at Navy Yard.

Washington.—Capt. E. W. Eberle has been detached from the cruiser Washington, now in Dominican waters, and ordered to duty as commandant of the Washington navy yard.

Laborer Killed by Train.

Oconomowoc.—August Buske, 49 years old, was killed at Oconomowoc when he was struck by a work train while walking home on the Milwaukee road tracks.

Athens, Nov. 2.—The police at Constantinople have stopped all British and French subjects from leaving Turkey. It is feared they may be detained as prisoners.

Foreign Trade Favors U. S.

Washington, Nov. 2.—The United States starts the month of November with the balance of foreign trade in its favor, according to the treasury department.

Auto Upsets; Two Killed.

Warsaw, Ind., Nov. 3.—Roy Hill, South Bend motorcycle racer, and Mrs. Olga Jackson, aged seventeen, were instantly killed when an auto in which they were riding upset four miles north of here.

One Killed in Auto Wreck.

Saginaw, Mich., Nov. 3.—Mrs. John Schuler of Saginaw was killed, her daughter, Mrs. Tracy Hubbard, seriously hurt and four other persons injured in an auto accident near Millington, Mich.

Stabbed in Election Row.

Harisburg, Ill., Nov. 4.—An argument over the election led to a fight here in which Elmer Dooley was stabbed by two negroes and is expected to die. The negroes escaped and have not been captured.

Auto Upsets; Two Killed.

Warsaw, Ind., Nov. 3.—Roy Hill, South Bend motorcycle racer, and Mrs. Olga Jackson, aged seventeen, were instantly killed when an auto in which they were riding upset four miles north of here.

Belgians Get First Relief.

Rotterdam, Nov. 4.—The first outside relief for the starving peoples of Belgium has arrived in that stricken country. Foodstuffs from the steamer Koblenz, which arrived from England on Saturday, reached Belgium.

Welsh Wins; Wolgast Hurt.

New York, Nov. 4.—Welsh, lightweight champion of world, won over Ad Wolgast in eight rounds. Referee stopped the fight and awarded the decision to Welsh. Wolgast broke his hand.

GAINS FOR G. O. P.

DEMOCRATIC MAJORITY IN HOUSE
CUT DOWN TO ALMOST NOTHING.

UNDERWOOD TO THE SENATE

Republicans Have Lost a Few Seats in Upper House—Hot Race in Indiana—"Uncle Joe" Cannon Is Elected.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Latest returns indicate that the Democratic majority in the house of representatives may be reduced from 145 to 9. With many contested districts still to be heard from by final figures, the incomplete returns divide the membership as follows: Democrats, 22; Republicans, 203; Progressives, 10.

The Democratic majority in the senate apparently has been increased from 10 to 14.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Lawrence Y. Sherman said to have carried Illinois for United States senator, defeating Roger C. Sullivan by probably 27,000 votes. To do this Senator Sherman had to receive over 100,000 of a plurality outside of Cook county, as Sullivan carries this county by probably 75,000.

In Connecticut the Republicans elected a governor, United States senator and five Republican congressmen to take the place of five sitting Democrats.

Robins in Illinois ran third to Sherman. In Cook he made almost as good a showing as the Republican, but in his own home precinct, the Eighteenth of the Seventeenth ward, he got only 50 votes, while Sullivan received 100 and Sherman 94.

In New York Charles S. Whitman, Republican, was elected to succeed Governor Glynn, Democrat, by a plurality estimated at 125,000. All other Republican candidates for state offices were elected. The legislature is Republican by a good working majority.

The early returns in Massachusetts indicated that David Walsh, Democrat, governor, had been defeated for reelection, but later, with most of the state in, it finally was conceded that the Democrat had won by nearly 10,000 plurality. Several congressional districts in Massachusetts that were Democratic for the past two years, however, were won back by the Republicans.

In Indiana, Albert J. Beveridge was overwhelmingly defeated for the senate. Senator Shively, Democratic incumbent, claims to have won by 20,000.

In Maryland the Democratic candidate for United States senator, J. W. Smith, has been elected over E. C. Carrington, Republican, and W. M. Reichard, Progressive. Iowa sends Albert B. Cummins back to the United States senate over M. Connolly, Democrat, by an increased plurality. George W. Clark, Republican, wins in Iowa for governor, over T. J. Hamilton, Democrat, and George C. White, Progressive.

Oscar W. Underwood, Democrat, is elected in Alabama to the United States senate by an immense plurality. In Pennsylvania Boies Penrose, Republican, was so far ahead of Gifford Pinchot, personal friend of former President Roosevelt, that it was admitted that Penrose would get ten times as many votes as the Progressive, A. M. Palmer, Democrat, was this.

Joseph G. Cannon of Danville (Ill.), former speaker of the house of representatives, elected over Frank O'Hair, Democrat, by a big plurality. New Hampshire elected R. H. Spaulding, Republican, over A. W. Noone, Democrat, and J. H. Gallinger, Republican, to the United States senate over R. B. Stevens, Democrat. In this state the Bull Moose loss was marked.

Mr. Philipp's total vote in the county is 22,620, of which 10,686 votes were given him in the city of Milwaukee. Karel's vote in the county was 20,325. When Mr. Philipp, the entire republican state ticket was endorsed in Milwaukee county by pluralities ranging from 2,691 for state treasurer, to 3,948 for attorney general.

Teachers Elect Officers.
La Crosse.—H. L. Gardner, superintendent of schools of Vernon county, was elected president of the Western Wisconsin Teachers' association at the closing session of the convention at the State Normal school here. F. C. Bray, Sparta, was elected vice president. George E. Sanford, West Salem, is the new secretary-treasurer, and the board of directors consists of A. H. Sanford, La Crosse; Robert Lohr, Arcadia, and Miss Lena Hildebrand, La Crosse.

Reward Girl's Bravery.
Eau Claire.—Miss Ragna Tangjord has been awarded a hero medal by the Raton her medal commission of St. Louis for her brave rescue of the little son and daughter of Rev. H. B. Kildahl of Milwaukee, from drowning in Prairie lake July 7.

democrat, 21,499; Seidel, socialist, 13,316; McGovern, republican, 15,874.
Two republican congressmen from the Milwaukee districts—William J. Carey in the Fourth and William J. Stanford in the Fifth—defeated the Social Democratic candidates Victor Berger and W. R. Gaylord.

Five nonpartisan candidates for county office were elected—clerk of courts, county treasurer, register of deeds, coroner and county surveyor—while a democrat was re-elected county clerk. Two socialists were given county offices, Winifred C. Zabel being elected district attorney, and Edward T. Melms nonpartisan, one democratic and one social democratic state senator were elected. Five nonpartisans were successful in contests for assembly seats, while six democrats and eight socialists were elected to the lower house of the state legislature.

On the ten proposed constitutional amendments, Milwaukee county rejected seven and approved three. The latter were the amendments providing for initiative and referendum; home rule and the recall.

No Change in Congressmen.
The congressional representation from Wisconsin remains unchanged. The hopes of the republicans that they would be able to redeem the Sixth and Ninth districts, which are normally republican but are now represented by democrats, were not realized. Both Congressman Reilly and Knop pulled through by small pluralities. In the case of Mr. Reilly it was a tight squeeze, his plurality being only a few hundred. Following are the congressmen elected:

First district—H. A. Cooper, Rep., Racine.
Second district—M. E. Burke, Dem., Beaver Dam.
Third district—J. M. Nelson, Rep., Madison.
Fourth district—W. J. Cary, Rep., Milwaukee.
Fifth district—W. H. Stafford, Rep., Milwaukee.
Sixth district—M. K. Reilly, democrat.
Seventh district—J. J. Esch, Rep., La Crosse.
Eighth district—E. E. Browne, Rep., Wisconsin.
Ninth district—T. F. Konop, Dem., Kewaunee.
Tenth district—J. A. Frear, Rep., Hudson.
State Officers Are Re-Elected.
There seems to be little doubt, judging from returns, that the entire republican state ticket below governor has been elected. Secretary of State John A. Donald, Attorney General W. O. Owen, State Treasurer Henry Johnson are re-elected for their second terms. E. F. Dittmar, republican candidate for lieutenant governor, will receive a plurality somewhat lower than that received by the other officials.

Legislature Stays Republican.
The results of the election show that the republicans retain a majority in both houses of the legislature. Returns from the senatorial districts in the state show the republicans carried ten of the seventeen districts in which elections were held this year. The democrats carried six districts. The social democrats carried one district.

Amendments Meet Defeat.
Returns, including those from Milwaukee county, indicate that all the proposed ten amendments to the state constitution have been defeated. In all cases they were defeated by a large majority of those voting on them, although No. 18S, providing for home rule of cities, appears to have received more support than any of the rest. Returns received so far show that the vote was heavier than in most elections where amendments have been submitted.

Extend Telephone Lines.
Washington.—Extensive additions to the rural telephone facilities in this county are being made by the Bayfield County Telephone company. When the work is completed there will be scarcely a farmhouse in the county not reached.

Beloit Babe Drinks Lye.
Beloit.—Adolph Krzewies, 3 years old, is in a critical condition from having drunk a canful of lye in his mouth or had prepared to use in washing.

Harrisburg, Ill., Nov. 4.—An argument over the election led to a fight here in which Elmer Dooley was stabbed by two negroes and is expected to die. The negroes escaped and have not been captured.

Auto Upsets; Two Killed.
Warsaw, Ind., Nov. 3.—Roy Hill, South Bend motorcycle racer, and Mrs. Olga Jackson, aged seventeen, were instantly killed when an auto in which they were riding upset four miles north of here.

One Killed in Auto Wreck.
Saginaw, Mich., Nov. 3.—John Schuler of Saginaw was killed, his daughter, Mrs. Tracy Hubbard, seriously hurt and four other persons injured in an auto accident near Millington, Mich.

Foreign Trade Favors U. S.
Washington, Nov. 3.—The United States starts the month of November with the balance of foreign trade in its favor, according to the treasury department.

Total Imports from October 3 to October 31 are $106,341,261 and exports $139,962,431, an excess of $33,621,170.

For the week ended October 28, 1923, bales of cotton were exported $139,962,431, an excess of $33,621,170.

Defeat Boer Forces.
London, Nov. 2.—A dispatch to Reuters Telegram company from Cape Town says: "Col. Alberts has defeated the rebels in the Lichtenberg district of the Transvaal."

AMID SHRAPNEL FIRE WRITER SEES FIERCE CONFLICT ON THE YSER RIVER

By EDGAR ANSEL MOWLER.
(Correspondent Chicago Daily News.)
West Flanders, Belgium.—For more than a week I have been at the headquarters of the Belgian army behind the line of the River Yser from Neuport to Dixmude. I have seen how the remnants of the army from Antwerp retreating on the way to Ostend went to northern France to rest and reorganize and how the rest of the Belgian forces, being asked to hold the lines 42 hours, have actually held it for six days, thus preventing a siege of Dunkirk and saving the French coast from invasion.

Stick to Antwerp to Last.
Contrary to what was at first reported, the Belgian army left Antwerp only after all the forts except four had been destroyed, and these four the defenders blew up as they hastily evacuated the town, the heroic Belgian, General de Gueles remaining to the last. What part of the retreating Belgian army entered Holland and are held by Dutch authorities is not known here.

It is certain that the others never would have escaped the Germans but for the heroic stand made by a mixed force of English, Belgians and French marines in the village of Nolle, southwest of Ghent, wherein two Belgian regiments—the Sixth volunteers and the Ninth of the line—particularly distinguished themselves.

Walks From Dunkirk to France.
I reached Furnes October 16, having walked from Dunkirk, I crossed a bridge, reached a village street and after two turnings emerged on the quiet old market place of Furnes, the home and present seat of the general headquarters of the Belgian army. I went at once to the headquarters in the town hall, made known my identity and secured a pass.

Starts Out for Neuport.
I thanked the soldiers and set out to walk to Neuport. On the outskirts of Furnes I passed a regiment of Belgians starting for Dixmude. I turned to the left in the direction of Neuport, but at the village of Wulpen I was turned back by an overpolite Belgian sergeant.

That night I heard a terrible cannonading, and Saturday morning, October 17, I learned that the battle of the Yser had begun. This battle, which has not yet come to an end, it is only a part of the greater battle of which it is likely to be the center. Small though it is in the number of troops engaged, the battle of the Yser presents three distinct phases, according to the nature of the ground.

About eight miles east of Furnes lies the town of Dixmude, where the attack began. The Belgians here had been reinforced by 5,000 French marine infantry, these marines forming the first line of defense, 400 yards beyond the town and on the right bank of the Yser. The Germans attacked with great violence about nine o'clock Friday evening. Marines who figured in the battle estimate their opponents' strength at 20,000. The attack continued until daybreak on Saturday, when the marines, ably assisted by French Belgian batteries placed behind the town, drove back the onslaught with considerable loss.

Reaches the Belgian Trenches.
When I reached the Belgian batteries and trenches about eleven a. m. Saturday the former were keeping up a steady fire. Some of the Belgians lying in the trenches which had been the second line of defense tried to deter me from continuing farther, as the shrapnel fire was rather heavy at this point, but I proceeded until I reached about one kilometer (six-tenths of a mile) on this side of the town. A Belgian lieutenant previously had given me permission to go one kilometer beyond the town to a position which, as I learned later, would have put me exactly between the opposing forces and in full line with the rifle fire.

Escapes Shrapnel of Germans.
I turned aside and approached a church in the midst of a small village. All the morning the booming of the far away German cannon had been audible, but it seemed without importance. Now I had my first experience of being under fire. As I was about to enter the church, intending to mount into the belfry, I heard an unerring whirr, of a somewhat fainter kind than that produced by projectiles from Belgian guns. It grew louder, louder and louder. I felt as if a devil's flying machine was looking about hunting for me, and for a brief second I wished that I had never come. Then, with a loud report, the German shrapnel burst harmlessly beyond the church and 100 feet up in the air. Since that day I have heard and seen perhaps 20 shells burst nearby over me, but never without the same awful sensation, which, I believe, is not

OPERA SINGER MAKES SHOES WHILE PRISONER

New York.—After having cracked stone and made shoes for eight weeks as a German prisoner in a French detention camp near Paris, Albert R. Reis, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company, arrived here from Havre, a passenger on the liner Chicago.

Mr. Reis, although a German, had lived in Paris 30 years. When the French government moved to Bor-

PRINCE SAYS HORROR STOPPED HIS HEART

Rotterdam.—The Berliner Tageblatt gives extracts from a letter written by Prince Oscar to a widow of an officer killed in battle. The prince wrote: "Two minutes before his death I was with your husband in the front line of defense. Both of us had, by God's grace, come through a hellish fire which lasted all day. Your husband left to try to force an advance fear of death, but the result of the unearthing sound.

Entering the church, I found it full of straw, the place evidently having been used as a dormitory for soldiers, but nothing had been touched, though chairs were scattered everywhere. After mounting a rickety ladder a long time in the dark I reached the very tip of the temple above the bell.

Sees Battle From Steeple.
Looking through my spyglasses over the flat country in the direction of the town, I was able to distinguish the very spots and buildings beyond which the Belgian shells were bursting. Flames were leaping high, but owing to a row of trees screening the German batteries I was unable to see what was burning. At that time the town itself was intact.

To the left stretched the poplar bordered Yser. I could see men sheltered in trenches along the roadside, trenches so cut as to provide a skeleton covering, upon which was heaped straw making a watertight roof. In front, about six hundred yards distant, a regiment was drawn up, but I was unable to learn the reason why.

In company with an English correspondent, at that time the only other correspondent with the Belgians, I saw the battle of Neuport at close range. Long before we reached the village of Neuport I saw part of the naval squadron lying just off the coast occasionally firing at some unseen mark and heard field artillery booming along.

Hear Battles in the Dunes.
We heard the Belgian batteries firing in the dunes on our right toward Neuport and only when we reached the south pier at the mouth of the Yser could we obtain any idea of the general situation, the lines at this point being held by the Sixth and Seventh Belgian infantry. The day was cloudy and the wind was driving the mist of rain inland. Accordingly, we sought a high, deserted building that stood nearest the river. When we finally struck our heads through the skylight, by the aid of our glasses we saw an unforgettable sight.

At our feet lay the railroad station at the mouth of the River Yser, which stretched away right to the town of Neuport, then bent southward and was hidden from view by the building in which we were. Behind the river, hidden in a grove of scrubby trees growing on the dunes, were three Belgian batteries of four guns each, which were firing incessantly straight across before us. The shells were striking beyond the village of Lombardzyde.

Thirteen Warships in Sight.
To the left, beyond Lombardzyde, was the village of Westende, where the Germans had retaken that morning. Still farther away the church spire of Middlekerke was faintly visible. Lombardzyde seemed quiet, but German shells bursting over it presently located the Belgian trenches before us and a few soldiers came running over the dunes.

But it was on the left that the spectacle was most impressive. There, lying out from the coast at varying distances, were 13 vessels of war. There were three cruisers, one of which fired occasionally from about three miles; the other lay silent somewhat farther from the coast and south of eight destroyers, four French and four English and three monitors.

Great Flashes Bare Batteries.
For a long time we watched the German shells bursting over Lombardzyde. The Belgian shrapnel and the shells of the monitors were directed against Westende. I saw the Belgian batteries lying on our side of the Yser, but though their thunder made our building tremble, we were able to locate the batteries only by the terrific flashes amid the trees through an occasional rift in the smoke. So well were they concealed that the Germans must have been unable to locate them, since the only shells which fell in our direction seemed to be aimed at the lighthouse, which the Germans probably imagined to be a wireless station. Each time a message was sent more shells came whirling toward the lighthouse. Many fell into the river.

Tells English Officer's Bravery.
We were joined in our skylight by a Belgian captain who asked us for the loan of our glasses and when he had seen all that he desired he told us the story of the English lieutenant who had landed on French soil, the lieutenant who he had just learned. This officer came ashore from the monitor Severn with 20 men and three machine guns to prevent the Belgian retreat.

Reaching Neuport, he saw that in losing Groote Damborghe farm that morning the Belgians had weakened their position. Accordingly, he started with his 20 men across the bullet-swept area right to the Belgian trenches. The men who were there when he walked as calmly as if on a tour of inspection, calling orders to his men and signaling with his hands, in a vain the Belgian officers shouted that the position was already occupied by the Germans. Either he did not hear or he was determined to accomplish the task at all costs.

Destiny broods and is silent over matters of this kind. When 50 yards from the coveted goal the young officer fell dead, a bullet having struck him between the eyes. The men retreated, still carrying the guns with them and with the memory of a hero in their minds.

deux, he said, he was arrested and sent to a camp six miles from Paris, where he lived in a slaughter house for eight weeks on a diet of codfish and mussels. He was made to crack stone for concrete, he asserted, until his hands became sore; then he was set to making shoes. He was released through the efforts of the American state department. Mr. Reis said he had no ill feeling against the French, but regarded his detention as a precaution, necessitated by conditions.

CHINA IS INCREASING CIGARETTE EXPORTS

It was then he received his fatal shot and was called into the great army. I was happy to follow further what happened as then I was required to be assisted by two of my men, on account of a heart attack, which I am endeavoring to recover from here at Hamburg under the care of my dear wife."

China is increasing cigarette exports.

Valparaiso, Chili, Nov. 4.—The German warships Goeben and Scharnhorst, Nürnberg, Leipzig and Dresden attacked the British fleet off Correl, Chile. The British cruiser Monmouth was sunk. The cruiser Good Hope was badly damaged, and as she was on fire is supposed to have been lost. The British cruiser Glasgow took refuge in the harbor of Correl and is now bottled up. The German battleships, Scharnhorst, Nürnberg and Goeben anchored at midday in Valparaiso harbor unopposed.

British Submarine Is Sunk.
London, England, Nov. 4.—The British submarine D-5 was sunk in the North sea by a mine which was thrown out by a German cruiser retreating before British cruisers. Two officers and two men of the submarine were saved. This information is contained in an admiralty report issued here.

Servia Declares War on Turkey.
London, Nov. 4.—With 300,000 Turkish troops marching against the Russians and 15,000 already across the frontier of Egypt to attack the British, Servia has seized the opportunity to renew hostilities with her ancient enemy and has declared war against the Porte, according to a report from Rome.

In spite of the fact that Turkey and Great Britain are already at war, it was announced by the foreign office that the British government has as yet taken no definite action toward Turkey. This evidently means that England has not declared war. The declaration is looked for momentarily, however.

Russ Cross Turkish Frontier.
Washington, Nov. 4.—The Russians have crossed the Turkish frontier and attacked the sultan's forces at Erzerum, according to a cable message received by the state department from United States Ambassador Morgenthau at Constantinople.

Morgenthau's dispatch also conveys the report that British cruisers have sunk two Turkish cruisers near Smyrna. As this port was recently mined by the Turks it is thought the Turkish cruisers were caught making for Smyrna.

These incidents officially reported indicate that war actually is begun, although there is yet no indication to this government by Turkey of a state of war.

Allies Rush Re-Enforcements.
London, Nov. 4.—Every possible effort is being made to rush new troops to the battle front in France and Belgium. It was admitted at the war office that the British troops had suffered heavy losses in the battle of the Yser, probably heavier than those of the French or Belgians. The Belgian troops are said to have lost between 12,000 and 18,000 men.

Germans Retire on Yser.
The advantage which the Germans gained by securing a foothold at the left bank of the Yser river has been abandoned, according to an official announcement issued in Paris. It states that the Germans have withdrawn and that the allied troops have regained the crossings of the Yser.

CLAIM ADVANCE IS HALTED

London Reports That German Attack Is Faltering—Berlin Claims to Be Satisfied With Situation.

London, Nov. 3.—The German drive upon Calais has been halted. During the day came the long awaited falter in the German attack. "The war office at Bordeaux officially declared that along the whole front from the Oise to the sea the pronounced attacks directed by the Germans had diminished in violence.

Both to the south of Dixmude and to the south of Ghaliwe, between Ypres and Menin, the allied French, British and Belgian troops occupied positions considerably in advance of those previously held. At every other point at which the troops came in contact with the Germans during the day the allies were able to maintain their positions, it is reported.

Paris Puts German Losses at 50,000.
The French war ministry is informed that the German losses in the north in the last few days have been 50,000, a Paris dispatch says. After an engagement at a single point on the Yser the Germans left 2,000 dead on the field. The French casualties in this engagement were reported to be 115 killed and wounded.

Germans Win at Ypres.
The British war office made no announcement to contradict the German claim of advantage in the fighting about Ypres, but admitted that the allies had been forced to evacuate part of the village of Messines in the face of a vigorous German attack.

In Belgium the German attacks were particularly desperate in character in the region between Dixmude and the Yser, but in spite of the vigor of these assaults the allies were able to make a slight advance along the entire front.

Situation Favorable, Berlin Says.
Berlin, by wireless via Sayville, N. Y., Nov. 3.—Analysis of the official and unofficial reports from the front show that the situation of the German troops along the Franco-Belgian battle front is entirely favorable. The news that the French were thrown back across the Aisne near Vailly, east of Soissons, and that the Germans have gained a success west of Verdun caused much rejoicing. Military critics regard these two successful issues as important.

Dikes Opened by Belgians.
On the Battle Front, via Paris, Nov. 4.—The German forces in the lower Yser valley in Belgium have been compelled to retreat, according to an official announcement issued here. The Belgians opened the dikes in the valley and the Germans were compelled to withdraw from the flood of water that poured forth against them. As the Germans retreated they were shelled by the Belgians.

It has been stated that many Belgian and French towns have been set afire and destroyed by petrol bombs. Even London has been in fear of destruction from this cause. The use of poisonous gases is undoubtedly planned by military engineers. We have positive evidence that a gun designed to discharge such gases among the enemy has been patented by the Krupp firm of Essen and we may hear at any moment that it is in action.

If you have too much color, as some matrons have, never wear either black or white close to your face. Cream or string-color, or mole, will suit you much better, for they help to take down the color.

If you are colorless and sallow, never wear a dull dress and hat without a touch of brightness somewhere. A red rose under the brim of your hat, a scarlet sunshade, or a little flame-colored bow or piping on your dress will do wonders for you.

Don't wear a sport shirt with a turn-up collar and sailor knot. These things are very nice for girls, but they don't suit you. If you want a shirt, have one that hooks down the back and is finished by a neckband and a little muslin stock.

Don't wear a hair net if you can possibly manage to keep it without it. They are dreadfully unbecoming things, which add years to a woman's age.

we are all glad of its further lease on life.

These new taffetas resemble somewhat a very fine twilled grograin, but have much more body. They are to be had in all the fashionable shades, and are being made up extensively in street and afternoon costumes.

Here illustrated is a charming costume in royal blue taffeta worn with fox fur dyed a delicate sulphur color and a jaunty capelet in blue velvet with yellow tinged feather fan-tails.

The blouse is plain and sprigged over a tiny vest of white batiste, with a flaring collar and small lapels of batiste twisted back from the V neck. Long sleeves are set smoothly into extended armholes, and are covered with a heavily embroidered black silk net, then finished with turned-back white cuffs.

The ornate net is applied to the border of the tunic skirt and makes a very handsome trimming. It will be noticed that the tunic is gathered to a big yoke under a self-covered corset, but the yoke in turn is gathered, too, and the result is very graceful.

A broad giraffe is cut out in square tabs about the top and along the line of fastening. The idea is repeated in the skirt placket to bring the closing in perfect alignment.

If desired, the sleeves and lower portion of the tunic can be made transparent by cutting the dress material from under them, but in that case the design could no longer answer the purposes of a street costume.—Lillian Young, in Washington Star.

ADORNMENT FOR TEA TABLE

Cozy Suitable for Practically All Occasions May Be Easily and Cheaply Made.

A cozy, as illustrated in the sketch, will be found most useful and suitable for almost every occasion. It is very simply made, for the covering consists of two proty paper serviettes. A foundation is necessary; cozy pads can be had in all shapes, sizes and colors. Select serviettes that fit as neatly as possible over the pad in question, an odd pad or cozy can be covered quite well, so that the idea is an excellent one for renovating old cozies cord, according to the choice of the worker; if paper is decided upon, it may be bought by the yard at any fancy shop where paper novelties are sold.

The cozy now has a very pretty appearance; it will be found to last for a long time and when the covering is soiled, fresh ones can be easily put on. It is useful for many purposes for which the best cozy is not suitable, such as nursery teas, children's parties, etc.

For party use generally, the idea will be found most useful; there is then no fear of a good cozy getting spoiled and the paper one can look most effective if the serviettes are chosen with a view to the particular occasion, for all kinds of designs are to be had.

Very Short Skirts.

In the new Bechoff-David models, which an enterprising buyer was fortunate enough to get to America, the skirts are decidedly short, and a striking feature of them is that in the evening frocks there are many trains hanging from very short skirts. Sometimes the skirt slopes gradually from the short front to the end of the long train; sometimes the long, pointed train hangs from a skirt that is short all the way around. The effect is novel.

Chiffon for Trimming.

Chiffon flowers are much used on hats and to catch the drapey on gowns. Small chiffon fruits, too, are used. Many of them are made of several layers of chiffon of various shades—red over purple, for instance, and then silver blue over that. The results are very interesting.

IMPROVING SHAPE OF MOUTH

Much May Be Done If Only the Attention Paid to the Matter Is Constant.

In bygone days, it is said, a noted belle used to stand in the hall before she entered the drawing room and repeat: "Peas, papas, prunes and plums," letting her lips fall lightly on each word. Then when she entered the crowded reception or ballroom she was quite sure a sweet expression dwelt in the corners of her pretty mouth.

One may improve the shape of her mouth by not allowing the muscles at each side to sag. Massage them nightly, with a good cold cream, always working the rotary movement up toward the nose. Then when the face is washed with hot water allow the muscles follow it by cold, which will tighten the muscles. Olive oil or cow's cream massaged into the mouth wrinkles will aid in plumping out hollows. A few drops of benzoin should be added to the olive oil so that it will not darken the skin. Keep the circulation good and the lips will be red. Also keep the teeth in good condition, for if the set is not complete hollows will appear in the cheeks.

[And use the lips—singing, whistling, blowing soap bubbles and laughing—particularly the latter.

New Velvet Hats.
The woman who dresses well will no longer wear a black velvet hat made on the recent lines. Panned velvet of a very supple quality and satin will be used for fall and winter hats.

Red and Brown.

Red and brown, an old-fashioned combination, have been well-used this summer. A very smart hat that has been seen lately is a big brown velvet canotier, with two huge red velvet roses on one side of the top of the crown.

Patch Pockets.

On some of the new skirts that are full at the hips patch pockets are employed to control this fullness. On a gray velvet frock with a plaited purple big pockets of satin are used on the hips. Sometimes these pockets are embroidered.

Women Don't Progress.

"Pockets for women will be worn this fall."

"What of that?"

"The girls may wear pockets, but I'll bet they still carry their junk all jumbled up in a handbag."

Consistency may be a jewel, but it doesn't always take the form of pearls of speech.

Time works wonders, and so would some people if they were as useless as time.

AMID SHRAPNEL FIRE WRITER SEES FIERCE CONFLICT ON THE YSER RIVER

By EDGAR ANSEL MOWDER.

(Correspondent Chicago Daily News.)
West Flanders, Belgium.—For more than a week I have been at the headquarters of the Belgian army behind the line of the Yser river from Neuport to Dixmude. I have seen how the remnants of the army from Antwerp retreating on the way to Ostend were sent to northern France to rest and reorganize and how the rest of the Belgian forces, being asked to hold the line 42 hours, have actually held it for six days, thus preventing a wedge of Dunkirk and saving the French coast from invasion.

Stick to Antwerp to Last.

Contrary to what was at first reported, the Belgian army left Antwerp only after all the forts except four had been destroyed, and these four the defenders blew up as they hastily evacuated the town, the heroic Belgian, General de Guebel remaining to the last. What part of the retreating Belgians, and the Ninth of this line, particularly distinguished themselves.

It is certain that the others never would have escaped the Germans but for the heroic stand made by a mixed force of English, Belgians and French marines in the village of Nello, southwest of Ghent, where two Belgian companies—the Sixth volunteers and the Ninth of this line, particularly distinguished themselves.

Walks From Dunkirk to France.

I reached Dunkirk October 16, having walked from Dunkirk. I crossed a bridge, reached a village street and after two turnings emerged on the quiet old market place of Furnes, the home and present seat of the general headquarters of the Belgian army. I went at once to the headquarters in the town hall, made known my identity and secured a pass.

Starts Out for Neuport.

I thanked the soldiers and set out to walk to Neuport. On the outskirts of Furnes I passed a regiment of Belgians starting for Dixmude. I turned to the left in the direction of Neuport, but at the village of Wulpen I was turned back by an overpolite Belgian sergeant.

"The night I heard a terrible cannonading, and Saturday morning, October 17, I learned that the battle of the Yser had begun. This battle, which has not yet come to an end, is only a part of the greater battle of which it is likely to be the center. Small though it is in the number of troops engaged, the battle of the Yser is one of the most important phases, according to the nature of the ground.

About eight miles east of Furnes lies the town of Dixmude, where the attack began. The Belgians here had been reinforced by 5,000 French marine infantry, those marines forming the first line of defense, 400 yards beyond the town and on the right bank of the Yser. The Germans attacked with great violence about nine o'clock Friday evening. Marines who figured in the battle estimate their opponents' strength at 20,000. The attack continued until daybreak on Saturday, when the marines, ably assisted by French and Belgian batteries placed behind the town, drove back the onslaught with considerable loss.

Reaches the Belgian Trenches.
When I reached the Belgian batteries and trenches about eleven a. m. Saturday the former were keeping up a steady fire. Some of the Belgians lying in the trenches which had been the second line of defense tried to deter me from continuing farther, as the shrapnel fire was rather heavy at this point, but I pressed on until I reached about one kilometer (six-tenths of a mile) on this side of the town. A Belgian lieutenant previously had given me permission to go one kilometer beyond the town to a position which, as I learned later, would have put me exactly between the opposing forces and in full line with the first line.

Escapes Shrapnel of Germans.

I reached Neuport, he saw that in losing Groote-Bambeghe farm that morning the Belgians had weakened their position. Accordingly, he started with his 20 men across the bullet-swept area right to the Belgian trenches. The men who were there as they walked as calmly as if on a tour of inspection, calling orders to his men as they went. The men in vain the Belgian officers shouted that the position was already occupied by the Germans. Either he did not hear or he was determined to accomplish the task at all costs.

GENERAL NEWS OF THE WAR

Financial Crisis in Italy Responsible for Resignation of the Cabinet.

Rome, Nov. 2.—All the cabinet ministers who resigned their portfolios yesterday met today with King Victor Emmanuel and discussed the war situation for about two hours.

German Losses Are 420,000.

Berlin, via London, Nov. 1.—The German casualty lists for the last week amount to 42,000. The total to date is about 420,000.

War Insurance Is Costly.

London, Nov. 2.—A premium of 60 guineas per cent was paid at Lloyds today to insure against a declaration of war by Italy on one of the great powers before the end of November. This high rate indicates that the underwriters regard the risk as considerable.

British Close North Sea.

London, Nov. 2.—The entire North sea has been declared a military area and merchant vessels entering it will be exposed to the gravest dangers from the mines and from the warships which are searching vigilantly by night and day for suspicious craft.

Kitchener Visits France.

Paris, Nov. 4.—Earl Kitchener, the British war minister, has paid another secret visit to France. It is learned. On Sunday evening he conferred with President Poincare at Dunkirk. He returned immediately afterward to England. On Monday President Poincare, King Albert of Belgium and M. Millerand, the French minister of war, reviewed the reserve French and Belgian troops at Furnes, Belgium, south of Neuport. Shells were falling about the railroad station in Furnes as the leaders stood near a hotel.

Say Crown Prince Is Shot.

Geneva, Nov. 4.—For several days rumors have drifted into Basel that Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany had been wounded in the fighting in France. These reports could not be verified, but travelers arriving here from Strassburg insist that they are true. They say the prince is seriously, though not mortally, wounded, and has been taken to the palace at Strassburg for treatment. Floods Check Germans.

Berlin, Nov. 5.—Main headquarters reports that our advance south of Neuport have been rendered impossible owing to floods, says a German report. "The water in the Rhine is deeper than a man's height. Our troops retreated from the submerged district without suffering any loss either in men, horses, cannon or wagons. Our attacks on Ypres are making been taken."

Report Heavy Losses.

Vienna, Nov. 2, via London, Nov. 3.—The battle in Russian Poland continues. On the River San the Russians have suffered heavy losses, especially near Roslaw. They captured 400 prisoners and three machines.

South of the Stry-Sambor line we also captured 400 prisoners. We have progressed here and northeast of Turka.

German Retreat Cut Off.

Have, Nov. 3.—A Belgian official building flash of flaming gasoline. It is much lighter than bombs of the same size containing dynamite, and is, therefore, very suitable for use by aeroplanes. Sir John French, the British commander, mentioned in an official report that one of his aviators dropped a petrol bomb on a German ammunition train. It has been stated that many Belgian and French towns have been set afire and destroyed by petrol bombs. Even London has been in fear of destruction from this cause. The use of poisonous gases is undoubtedly planned by military engineers. We have positive evidence that a gun designed to discharge such gases among the enemy has been patented by the Krupp firm of Essen and may be put at any moment that it is in action.

GENERAL NEWS OF THE WAR

Financial Crisis in Italy Responsible for Resignation of the Cabinet.

Rome, Nov. 2.—All the cabinet ministers who resigned their portfolios yesterday met today with King Victor Emmanuel and discussed the war situation for about two hours.

German Losses Are 420,000.

Berlin, via London, Nov. 1.—The German casualty lists for the last week amount to 42,000. The total to date is about 420,000.

War Insurance Is Costly.

London, Nov. 2.—A premium of 60 guineas per cent was paid at Lloyds today to insure against a declaration of war by Italy on one of the great powers before the end of November. This high rate indicates that the underwriters regard the risk as considerable.

British Close North Sea.

London, Nov. 2.—The entire North sea has been declared a military area and merchant vessels entering it will be exposed to the gravest dangers from the mines and from the warships which are searching vigilantly by night and day for suspicious craft.

Kitchener Visits France.

Paris, Nov. 4.—Earl Kitchener, the British war minister, has paid another secret visit to France. It is learned. On Sunday evening he conferred with President Poincare at Dunkirk. He returned immediately afterward to England. On Monday President Poincare, King Albert of Belgium and M. Millerand, the French minister of war, reviewed the reserve French and Belgian troops at Furnes, Belgium, south of Neuport. Shells were falling about the railroad station in Furnes as the leaders stood near a hotel.

Say Crown Prince Is Shot.

Geneva, Nov. 4.—For several days rumors have drifted into Basel that Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany had been wounded in the fighting in France. These reports could not be verified, but travelers arriving here from Strassburg insist that they are true. They say the prince is seriously, though not mortally, wounded, and has been taken to the palace at Strassburg for treatment. GOOD ADVICE FOR MATRON Style Tips Woman of Middle Age Should Remember If She Would Look Her Best.

Don't think that, just because you have grownup daughters, it is your duty to always wear a frumpy black dress. Your daughters and everyone else will like you much better if you take pains to make yourself look nice.

If you have too much color, as some matrons have never wear either black or white close to your face. Cream or string-color, or mole, will suit you much better, for they help to take down the color.

If you are colorless and sallow, never wear a dull dress and hat without a touch of brightness somewhere. A red rose under the brim of your hat, a scarlet sash, or a little flame-colored bow or piping on your dress will do wonders for you.

Don't wear a sport shirt with a turn-over collar and sailor-knot tie. These things are very nice for girls, but they don't suit you. If you want a shirt, have one that looks down the back and is finished by a neckband and a little middle stock for your dress will do wonders for you.

Don't wear a hair net if you can possibly manage to keep it without it. They are dreadfully unbecoming things, which add years to a woman's age.

Will Please a Booklover

Attractive and Inexpensive Gift That Serves Its Purpose to Perfection.

An attractive and very inexpensive gift that is suitable for a young person or an adult is a bookmark embroidered with the name of the person for whom it is intended. Either wide or narrow ribbon can be used in making the bookmark and with the aid of paper mache initials which can be purchased in almost any store where embroidery materials are sold—even a young girl can make a really handsome one. If the ribbon is wide, as illustrated in the drawing, the initials should be larger than when narrow ribbon is used. It is not desirable, however, to place a thick bookmark in an expensive book and for this reason many booklovers prefer a long, narrow ribbon marked with small initials at one end where they will never be shut inside the book.

Such a marker can be made from satin ribbon one inch wide, the length being from nine to twelve inches. This will cost from five to eight cents. Three small paper mache initials will cost five cents, and a skein of embroidery floss will cost four or five cents. Good floss on white satin ribbon is very effective. Fringe the ends of the ribbon.

Red and Brown.

Red and Brown, an old-fashioned combination, have been well used this summer. A very smart hat that has been seen lately is of a brown velvet material, with two large red velvet roses on one side of the top of the crown.

Patch Pockets.

On some of the new skirts that are full at the hips, patch pockets are employed to control the fullness. On a gray velvet frock with a plaided bottom big pockets of satin are used on the hips. Sometimes these pockets are embroidered.

Very Short Skirts.

In the new Heccho-David models, which an enterprising buyer was fortunate enough to get to America, the skirts are decidedly short, and a striking feature of them is that in the evening frocks there are many trains hanging from very short skirts. Some of the short skirts are made from the short front to the end of the long train; sometimes the long, pointed train hangs from a skirt that is short all the way around. The effect is novel.

Chiffon for Trimming.

Chiffon flowers are much used on hats and to catch the drapery on gowns. Small chiffon fruits, too, are used. Many of them are made of several layers of chiffon of various shades—red over purple, for instance, and then silver blue over that. The results are very interesting.

New Velvet Hats.

The woman who dresses well will no longer wear a black velvet hat made on the recent lines. Velvet of a very supple quality and satin will be used for fall and winter hats.

SUNDAY SCHOOL DELEGATES HERE

The delegates to the annual Sunday School convention, which is now in progress in this city, began to arrive on Monday afternoon, and since that time every train has added its quota to the assemblage, and the result was that when the sessions were opened on Tuesday there were something like three hundred already in attendance and that number has been greatly augmented since that time.

The opening of the entertainment gotten up for the delegates occurred at the Congregational church on Monday evening when the cantata "Ruth" was given by a chorus of mixed voices under the direction of Mrs. I. P. Witter. The church was crowded to its utmost capacity, and the entertainment passed off in a most happy manner. Those taking part in the cantata showed that they had been well drilled in their parts and as we have some very nice voices in the city the affair was excellent from a musical viewpoint.

Sleeping quarters for those in attendance at the convention have been found at the different residences about the city, and tables have been set in the amusement hall, where dinner and supper is being served, there being room for over three hundred there. Following is the program for the three days of the convention:

SUNDAY SCHOOL DELEGATES HERE

The delegates to the annual Sunday School convention, which is now in progress in this city, began to arrive on Monday afternoon, and since that time every train has added its quota to the assemblage, and the result was that when the sessions were opened on Tuesday there were something like three hundred already in attendance and that number has been greatly augmented since that time.

The opening of the entertainment gotten up for the delegates occurred at the Congregational church on Monday evening when the cantata "Ruth" was given by a chorus of mixed voices under the direction of Mrs. I. P. Witter. The church was crowded to its utmost capacity, and the entertainment passed off in a most happy manner. These taking part in the cantata showed that they had been well drilled in their parts and as we have some very nice voices in the city the affair was excellent from a musical viewpoint.

Sleeping quarters for those in attendance at the convention have been found at the different residences about the city, and tables have been set in the amusement hall, where dinner and supper is being served, there being room for over three hundred there. Following is the program for the three days of the convention:
